PREFACE.

There is, perhaps, no spot upon the great continent of America more fraught with interest than the domain acquired by William Penn. Its people, its traditions, and the very lustre of its deeds make one of the brightest pages in the history of this liberty-loving land.

Pennsylvania figured notably during the Revolutionary period. Her soil was the theatre of memorable martial exploits, and within her limits was the great Declaration of Independence first proclaimed to the world.

During the Rebellion Pennsylvania took a patriotic and prominent part, sending to the Union Army 387,284 of her sons and citizens, and consecrating her soil by the victory of the Union arms at Gettysburgh. The last chapter of this book is devoted to perpetuating the memory of those heroes of these two great wars, who are identified with this family. I have, therefore, been stimulated in my researches by the facts that those with whom I deal were identified with the years of Pennsylvania's long and noble struggle. Here they lived and loved, died and were buried within the shadow of their own homes.

As a descendant of the original owners of the land, I cannot but feel a desire to do the subject all the justice which careful research, supplemented by the generous aid of others, will permit.

In submitting these interesting details which have come to me, I ask the kindest indulgence and most gentle criticism, knowing that the tedious monotony of so many repetitions in the form of construction as must necessarily occur in the compilation of a genealogical record will tax the reader's patience. These narratives are the fruits of the earnest efforts of such spare hours as the writer has been able to seize during the intervals of business and labor. Exclusive originality has not been aimed at, nor has any particular model for imitation been studied. The compiler's only profit in this undertaking is the pleasure he has derived in the effort to rescue from obscurity and forgetfulness the names and deeds of those that are dear to him.

The compiler desires to acknowledge the kindness of the many persons who have assisted in the work aside from their own immediate records. Many not named are not forgotten, if I refer to a few whom it were unpardonable to omit: Mrs. Anna Vought Bodine, to whom I am indebted for the biographical record of Joseph Fisher, Sr., and his children; to Mr. Wilson M. Gearhart, Chief Clerk of the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, for the military record of Lambert Pitner, and the autograph of Balthasar Fetterman; the Hon. Martin I. Townsend, for placing at my disposal the State Library at Albany, N. Y. Others who should be named in the same spirit are: Mr. Urias Bloom, Registrar and Recorder of Northumberland County; Mr. Saul Shipman, Mr. George W. Farlee, Mr. Randolph W. Farley and Mr. Franklin Jaquith.

GENEALOGY OF THE FISHER FAMILY.

CHAPTER I.

JOSEPH FISHER AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

Joseph Fisher, the progenitor of this family in America, was born in April, 1734, in Saxony, and emigrated to this country at an early age. Tradition gives us the following account of his emigration and subsequent career:

His parents were followers of the Lutheran faith, in whose doctrines he was educated. Having reached the age of thirteen years, he was apprenticed to learn a trade—a time-honored custom which is still in vogue in the German Empire, and from which not even the Princes of that country are exempt—and that he might have the advantages offered in a new and growing country, he was placed in charge of friends who were emigrating to America, with whom he was to remain until the completion of his apprenticeship, after which he was expected to return to his Saxon home. Upon their arrival in America, about the year 1747, they located in West Jersey, where the early period of his life was passed. He married in that neighborhood, and otherwise becoming attached to the country, made this the home of his adoption, and never again returned to the scenes of his childhood. He remained in New Jersey until after the close of the Revolutionary war, when he, with his family, removed into Pennsylvania, and located in Northumberland County, where the remaining years of his life were spent. He was accompanied to America by his sister, Elizabeth, who died soon after their arrival in New Jersey.

Joseph Fisher, Sr., was born in Saxony, April, 1734. As has been previously stated, he emigrated to America, where he arrived about the year 1747. He located in West Jersey, a German colony at that time, and resided there until 1788.

He married, June 5th, 1764, Catharine Mineger, who was born in Holland, Aug. 24th, 1746. After their marriage they located in Morris or Sussex County, New Jersey, near what is now known as Harmony township, in Warren County.

During the Revolutionary epoch he gave what aid was possible to the common cause of the colonists; having enlisted in the militia of that State, and by the colonial war records being credited to Morris County. I was unable to ascertain the engagements in which he participated. After the close of the war the family found themselves greatly impoverished. Their land had been laid waste by the armies, and, being otherwise handicapped, they removed from that place to Pennsylvania in 1788, locating in Northumberland County, which at that time embraced a large section out of which fourteen counties have since been carved.

From a family chronology that was given me by Alem B. Fisher, of Mount Carmel, Pa., I have been enabled to secure the complete record of Joseph Fisher, Sr., and his family. This record I have accurately reproduced in an engraving. It was drawn July 9th, 1787, by "John Sheridan, scripsit;" evidently the year prior to their emigration. The old record is nearly destroyed by age. It is held together by an old Saxon engraving that had been taken from a Saxon Bible. It registers on the back of the record the birth of a grandson, as follows: Jonas Mucheler, son of Samuel and Mary Mucheler, born June 15th, 1789. The marriages and baptism that appear in the engraving were written several years after the original part of it was drawn.

They had the following issue, all of whom were born in Sussex County, N. J.:

2. i. Catharine², b. June 29th, 1765; m. Nicholas Shipman.
3. ii. Henry, b. July 23d, 1767; m. Magdalene Farlee.
4. iii. Mary, b. Dec. 18th, 1769; m. Samuel Mucheler.
5. iv. Hannah, b. Jan. 27th, 1772; m. Caleb Farlee, Jr.
6. v. Elizabeth, b. July 21st, 1774; m. John Reeder.
7. vi. John, b. June 19th, 1776; m. Elizabeth Mauser.
- vii. Moses, b. Sept. 23d, 1778; m. Elizabeth Bear.
- viii. David, b. March 6th, 1781.
8. ix. Jacob, b. Dec. 18th, 1783; m. Margaret Kimbpel.
9. x. Joseph, b. May 20th, 1786; m. Mary Kimbpel.

The removal of Joseph Fisher and his children, with their families, from Sussex County, N. J., to the wild and undeveloped lands of the Susquehanna Valley in Northumberland County, Pa., was doubtless due to various circumstances. At that period the common object of all pioneers was the planting of new homes where patient and persevering toil would give a moderate competence for old age as well as greater advantages for their growing families. The greater portion of the colonists who resided in Sussex and adjacent counties during the Revolutionary war took an active part in that struggle for freedom, and a large number of them at the close of the war found themselves impoverished by their aid to, and sufferings in, that noble cause. Tradition informs us that this, as has been said before, was one of the causes that led to the change of location of this family.

The selection of their home site was doubtless due to the earlier emigration of a relative, or some of their neighbors, who had made purchases in that locality. About the year 1786, a line of travel was conceived and begun from Easton to Nescopee Falls, which opened up the region adjacent to Fort Augusta to the exodus from Sussex and Warren Counties, in New Jersey, and Bucks County, in Pennsylvania, where the Fisher, Mineger, Shipman, Farlee, Mucheler and Pitner families resided prior to their removal to Northumberland County.

It was over that early constructed highway that, in 1788, Joseph Fisher, Sr., with his family, journeyed to their new home that he had purchased April 7th, 1788, of Samuel and Margaret Reeder, and which was located in Catawissa township, Northumberland County, containing one hundred acres. They arrived there the year after Catawissa had been first laid out by William Hughes.

They made their journey in wagons. Pack saddles were also brought into requisition, and they were placed upon the cattle as well as the horses. With these meagre facilities for travel the amount of goods brought with them was narrowed to the articles of pressing necessity. Doubtless room was found for a few cherished relics and articles of furniture for the new home. This journey usually occupied from six to eight days. They brought with them two horses and three cows, besides smaller and younger stock not enumerated upon the taxable list.

After their arrival the selection of a location for their cabin was made with as little delay as possible. The site chosen was adjacent to the waters of Little Roaring Creek. The erection of this building was not a laborious affair, the material used being rough, unhewn logs, for which the forests furnished ample supply, and their experience the requisite skill in construction.

The furniture was supplied from the growing timber with the aid of the axe and drawshave, with the addition of the few articles they had brought with them from their former home. The fire-place was the one feature of this pioneer home that combined the characteristics of usefulness and luxury. It was built in the side of the cabin facing the main entrance, and was large and roomy and built of stone, over which was placed the support for the rifle and powder horn—indispensable to the frontiersman.

After shelter had been provided, the entire time was devoted to clearing the land of its virgin forests, the whole family aiding in the work, until sufficient land was secured to raise the necessities for their daily wants. A patch of flax was early sown and formed the basis of the family clothing, and, while both sexes joined in the labor of converting the raw material into finished garments, the greater part of this work fell to the lot of the housewife. Housekeeping was crowded into the smallest possible space to make place for the spinning-wheel and loom.

Their early social duties and privileges were of the simplest kind. And yet out of their simplicity came their perfection and beauty. Perhaps the earliest of these fusing influences was the church. All had strongly cherished religious affiliations, and were thus brought together in some form of public worship. With the exception of Joseph Fisher, Sr., they were nearly all members of the Blue Hill Presbyterian Church, which was located beyond the village of Elysburg. This church was one of those quaint log structures erected in the early colonial days. It was quite a commodious building, graced with a gallery that extended around three sides of the edifice. In this plain but homelike structure for years the early pioneers gathered to worship. There was a burial ground attached to it, which is still in use and is kept in good order, and, to this day, once each year, in the month of June, the descendants of those staunch old pioneers meet to put their last resting place on earth in order. The church was taken down some few years since, on account of decay and unfitness for use by reason of its age.

The minister who had charge of that church was the highly esteemed Rev. Samuel Henderson. Besides the regular services held in the church, he frequently held services on Saturday night or on Sunday afternoon at the early home of Joseph Fisher, Sr., and at the home of his sons, Jacob and Joseph, also at the house of Squire Ely, a much respected neighbor. At these services the residents of the immediate vicinity would gather, and, after the completion of their devotions, they would spend an hour or two in a pleasant social visit. Many of the usages now prevalent, while somewhat modified, are still easily traceable to the habits and customs inculcated in the fatherland.

Shortly after his arrival in Northumberland County, Joseph Fisher, Sr., made several purchases of land. The first purchase was made April 7th, 1788, of Samuel and Margaret Reeder, of one hundred acres in Catawissa township. The second purchase made was on October 15th, 1795, of one hundred and ten acres of Joseph Reeder. This land was situated in Shamokin township, Northumberland County. Again, Oct. 17th, 1807, he made an additional purchase of three hundred and seven acres of land of Margaret Craig, Hester Green and Thomas Holmes which tract was located on Roaring Creek in Catawissa township, in the same county, for which he paid three hundred and forty-five pounds, seven shillings and six pence. I secured a record of the fact that on Nov. 5th, 1790, he sold to Peter Yocum, two hundred and fifty-one and a half acres of land, situated in Shamokin township. I was unable to ascertain from whom this was purchased.

In looking over the old assessment books of Northumberland County, I found that the name Joseph Fisher, Sr., first appears on the assessment list in 1788, at which time he was assessed for one hundred and sixty acres of land, two horses and three cows in Shamokin township. In the year 1790, although Shamokin township covered a large area of territory, the assessment books record but fifty-three married and eleven single taxables who were residents of that township. The year following there was a slight increase, there being seventy-seven married and nine single taxables. This included Caleb Farlee and his grandson, Caleb Farlee, Jr., with his wife, Hannah, daughter of Joseph Fisher, Sr., who removed there from Sussex County, N. J.

The married children of Joseph Fisher, Sr., soon followed him into Northumberland County, from Sussex County, N. J. Nicholas Shipman and wife, Catharine, the eldest daughter of Joseph Fisher, Sr., arrived in 1794, and located at the head of Boyles' Run, in Lower Augusta township. Henry Fisher and wife, Magdalene, daughter of Caleb Farlee, arrived about 1791. They settled near the homestead in Shamokin township. Samuel Mucheler and wife, Mary, daughter of Joseph Fisher, Sr., arrived about 1791, and located in Catawissa township, near Sharp Ridge.

Within a few years of his arrival, Joseph Fisher, Sr., cleared the greater portion of his estate of its original forest. He subsequently erected a large residence in the immediate vicinity of the spot where his first home had stood, which he occupied until the time of his death. His wife, Catharine, died about 1809, and was buried in the burial ground attached to the Lutheran Church at Catawissa, Pa. After her death he lived with his son, Jacob, who assisted him in the management of his plantation, and with whom he passed the remainder of his life.

An old friend in describing him to me, gave the following account of his every day life :

“ He was a very unpretentious gentleman, kind to his “neighbors and to his family, to which he was greatly “attached. Temperate in his habits, he was a devout “Christian, greatly attached to his church, of which he “was a regular attendant, and in every respect a model

“and industrious farmer. In his dress he was very “plain, patterning after the Quakers. His unostentatious
“and unassuming ways, and his known integrity in all “his business relations, made him esteemed by all his “acquaintances.”

The greater portion of his life had been uneventful outside of the ordinary occurrences that fell to the lot of all pioneers and well-to-do farmers. He had by his own endeavors, from a youth of thirteen years of age, fought his way valiantly through the world. He arrived in a new country at a time when it was sparsely settled, and which was still from time to time embroiled in the political strifes and Indian wars of that period, a state of affairs that left to the colonists little of the peace and repose that they had expected when they left the “Vaterland.”

He died at his home Wednesday, December 29th, 1819, after a short illness, aged 85 years and 8 months. He was buried on New Year's day, 1820, by the side of his wife in the burial ground attached to the Lutheran Church, at Catawissa, Pa.

At the vendue of his personal estate, Feb. 19th, 1820, I note the sale of a “large German Bible,” which was purchased by Jacob Wart. It aptly illustrates how in his old age he still clung to the language of his childhood in his favorite pursuits.

WILL OF JOSEPH FISHER.

In the name of God. Amen. I, Joseph Fisher, of Catawissa township, in the County of Columbia, and State of Pennsylvania, yeoman, being in perfect health of body and of sound mind, memory and understanding, blessed be God for the same, but considering the uncertainty of this transitory life, do make and publish this, my last will and testament, in manner and form following, to wit: 1st, It is my will and I do order that all my just debts and funeral expenses be duly paid and satisfied by my executors hereinafter mentioned as soon as conveniently can after my decease, out of my personal estate. 2d, I do give and devise unto my sons, Henry, Jacob and Joseph, all that certain messuage or tenement plantation and tract of land situated in the township of Catawissa, aforesaid, bounded and described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a chestnut marked for a corner standing on the line of Charles Goughtz land; thence by the same and Andrew Bosharts and vacant land, west two hundred and twenty-three perches to a post set for a corner; thence north ten degrees east two hundred and seventy-two perches to a corner marked white oak; thence east one hundred and seventy-three perches to a pine; thence south two hundred and sixty-three perches to the place of beginning, containing three hundred and seven acres and allowance of six per cent. for roads, &c., be the same more or less, together with all and singular the improvements, hereditaments and appurtenances whatsoever thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining, to have and to hold to them, the said Henry Fisher,

Jacob Fisher and Joseph Fisher, their heirs and assigns forever, as tenants in common and not as joint tenants, subject to their payment thereof unto my other children hereinafter named the several sums of money to them respectively bequeathed. 3d, I do give and bequeath to my daughter, Catharine Shipman, and to her heirs and assigns the sum of three hundred and seventeen dollars and seventy-seven cents, the one-third part thereof to be paid one year after my decease, one-third part thereof two years after my decease and the other third part thereof in three years after my decease, without interest. 4th, I do give and bequeath to my daughter, Mary Mutchler, and to her heirs and assigns the sum of three hundred and seventeen dollars and seventy-seven cents, in gold or silver coin, the one-third part thereof to be paid in one year after my decease and one-third part thereof to be paid in two years after my decease and the other third part thereof in three years after my decease, without interest. 5th, I do give and bequeath to my daughter, Hannah Farley, and to her heirs and assigns the sum of three hundred and seventy-seven dollars and seventy-seven cents, in gold and silver coin, the one-third part thereof to be paid in one year after my decease, one-third part thereof to be paid in two years after my decease and the other third part thereof in three years after my decease without interest. 6th, I do give and bequeath to my daughter, Elizabeth Reader, unto her heirs and assigns the sum of three hundred and seventy-seven dollars and seventy-seven cents, in gold or silver coin, the one-third part thereof to be paid in one year after my decease, one-third part thereof to be paid in two years after my decease and the other third part thereof in three years after my decease, without interest. 7th, I do give and bequeath to my son, John Fisher, and to his heirs and assigns the sum of two hundred and sixty-eight dollars and eighty-eight cents, in gold and silver coin, but whereas my said son, John, is indebted to my son, Henry, a certain sum of money wherefor in part I am security, it is therefore my will that the said Henry be first paid out of the said legacy and the residue thereof to be paid to my said son, John, or to his lawful heirs, the one-third part thereof in one year after my decease, one-third part in two years after my decease and the other third part thereof in three years after my decease. 8th, I do give and bequeath to my four grandchildren, lawful heirs of my son, John, namely, John, Catharine, William and Elizabeth, the sum of two hundred and sixty-eight dollars and eighty-eight cents, to be equally divided among them, share and share alike, each one of them one-fourth part thereof, to be paid in one year after my decease, one other third part thereof in two years after my decease and the other third part thereof in three years after my decease, but if either of them should be in their minority at the time of my decease, then, and in such case, the share of those who are in their minority be placed at interest and be paid to them when they shall arrive at the age of twenty-one years; but if either of my said grandchildren should die in their minority and without lawful issue, then, in such case, that share to be equally divided among the surviving brothers and sisters of them. 9th, I do give and bequeath to my son, Moses Fisher, and to his heirs and assigns the sum of five hundred and thirty-seven dollars and seventy-seven cents, in gold or silver coin, the one-third part thereof to be paid in one year after my decease, one-third part thereof to be paid in two years after my decease and the other third part thereof to be paid in three years after my decease, without interest. All which said legacies and bequeaths my sons, Henry, Jacob and Joseph, or their heirs or some of them, shall pay in lien of the real estate hereinbefore to them devised. 10th, I do give and bequeath all the residue of my personal estate, after paying my just debts and funeral expenses, to my nine children, namely, Catharine Shipman, Henry, Mary Mutchler, Hannah Farley, Elizabeth Reader, John, Moses, Jacob and Joseph, and to their heirs and assigns, equally to be divided amongst them, and, lastly, I do hereby nominate, constitute and appoint my two sons, Henry Fisher and Jacob Fisher, and my worthy friend, David Parry, to be the executors of this, my last will and testament. Hereby revoking all former wills by me made and declaring this and no other to be my last will and testament, in witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal.

Dated the twelfth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fourteen.

[SEAL.]

Signed, sealed and published, pronounced and declared by the said testator as and for his last will and testament in the presence of us, who, in his presence and at his request, have subscribed our names as witnesses.

JOHN ADAM GAILGER.

CHAPTER II.

LINE OF CATHARINE, AND THE SHIPMAN FAMILY.

2. Catharine² Fisher (Joseph¹), daughter of Joseph and Catharine Mineger Fisher, born June 29th, 1765, in Sussex County, New Jersey; d. 18 , near Boyle's Run, in Lower Augusta township, Northumberland County, Pa.; m. Nov. 13th, 1783, to Nicholas, son of Harmon Shipman, Sr., b. about 1758, in Harmony township, now Warren County, N. J.; d. Sept., 1827, in Lower Augusta township, Northumberland County.

On account of the intermarriages of several of Joseph Fisher's descendants with the Shipman family, the compiler deems it best to give under this head the entire record of that branch of the Shipman family who were thus related to this line of the Fishers.

Harmon¹ Shipman, Sr., the progenitor of the Shipman family in America, was born in Germany, in 1717, and emigrated to America about the year 1740. He settled in the township of Harmony, now Warren County, New Jersey, at a place known as Uniontown, where he purchased two hundred acres of land, the greater portion of which he cleared of its original forest and upon which he resided up to the time of his death, March 8th, 1805.

Some years prior to the Revolutionary war he erected upon this plantation a substantial stone residence, in which most of his children were born. The house at this writing is still in a good state of preservation. In October, 1889, the compiler had the residence photographed and an engraving made of it for this record.

By the aid of Mr. R. B. Vannetta, clerk of Harmony township, Warren County, N. J., the compiler is enabled to give an excellent description of the old homestead and the place of burial of Harmon Shipman. In a letter to me, dated Roxbury, N. J., Nov. 25th, 1889, Mr. Vannetta says:

"I have this day taken a drive to see the old 'Shipman homestead' and took the dimensions of the old house. The size is 28 by 30 feet, story and half high. The old part of the house has three rooms up stairs as originally built; down stairs there are at present three rooms, but originally four, the change in the rooms were made this spring.

"The house has the old-fashioned fire-places 'right across the corner.' The ceilings are seven feet six inches high. There was an old one-story kitchen attached to the house, but that has been removed and a large frame part erected in its stead.

"Upon further inquiry of some old gentlemen in the same neighborhood, I learned there was a gentleman by the name of Harmon Shipman buried in what is known as the 'Straw Church' (St. James) grave yard.

RESIDENCE OCCUPIED AND OWNED BY HARMON SHIPMAN

DURING THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR

SITUATED AT UNIONTOWN WARREN COUNTY NEW JERSEY

“So I drove on to that church yard, and made a tour of inspection among the old settlers of that silent city, finally I came upon a slab that marked the last resting place of Harmon Shipman. The following is the inscription thereon :

“‘HARMON SHIPMAN,

Died March 8th, 1805,

Aged 88 years.

This slab is erected to his memory by

DAVID SHIPMAN,

His only surviving child, and

HIS GRANDCHILDREN,

In 1858.’”

Upon the death of Harmon Shipman, Sr., his sons, Abraham and Harmon, Jr., succeeded to the ownership of the homestead, and in 1807 Abraham sold his interest in the estate to his brother, Harmon, and removed to Franklin township, Warren county, where he died. The building is now owned by the Fiet estate.

During the struggle for Independence, Harmon Shipman aided the American cause in every possible way. He also sent his sons, William, Nicholas (who enlisted at the age of sixteen), John and Christian, to do battle for their country's freedom.

After the close of the war the family found themselves greatly impoverished by their loyal efforts, and, we are informed, advised and were instrumental in the removal of the older sons, with their families, to other settlements. William and Nicholas, with their families, removed into Pennsylvania, locating in Augusta township, Northumberland County, in the spring of 1794; and, in 1802, they were followed by their brothers, Christian and Jacob, with their families, who located in the same vicinity.

That Harmon Shipman, Sr., was a German there is no doubt, but from what part of Germany he came no one even conjectures. According to tradition he was first married in Germany, and this wife came with him to America. She died some years later and he again married, the second time a Miss Howe.

Issue by first wife:

10. i. William², b. June 9th, 1756; d. Jan. 23d, 1841.
11. ii. Nicholas, b. , 1758; d. Sept., 1827.
- iii. John, b.
- iv. Christian, b.
- v. A daughter, who died in youth.

Issue by second wife:

12. vi. Jacob, b. May 8th, 1766; d. Feb. 24th, 1848.
- vii. Harmon, Jr., b.
- viii. David, b.
- ix. Abraham, b. April 8th, 1773; m., Feb. 1st, 1800, to Mary Eckman.
- x. Elizabeth, b.
- xi. Mary, b.

10. William² Shipman (Harmon¹), born in Harmony township, Sussex County, N. J., June 9th, 1756; d. Jan. 23d, 1841; buried in the Mountain Presbyterian burial ground, Lower Augusta township, Northumberland County; m. Catharine Campbell, of Sussex County, N. J.

He was a volunteer in the Revolutionary war. He married soon after the close of the war, and the devastation caused by the armies in that vicinity, led to his removal with his brother, Nicholas, and their families to Northumberland County, Pa., where they located in the southern part of Augusta township in the spring of 1794. The same year he is assessed with one hundred and fifty acres of land. They subsequently made additional purchases of land near the head of Boyle's Run, where they afterwards lived.

When a boy he was employed in the saw and grist mill of his father, and his education was limited to the attendance in a country school, supplemented by a short course at the academy in New Berlin.

He enlisted as First Sergeant of Captain Edwin A. Evans' Company D, Third Regiment of Pa. Artillery, 152nd Pa. Volunteers, Oct. 30th, 1862. Was promoted to Second Lieutenant of Company D, Third Regiment Artillery, 152nd Pa. Volunteers, May 18th, 1864, and served as such until the close of the Rebellion. While serving as officer of the day at Fortress Monroe, he took charge of Jefferson Davis after his capture, and served to him his first rations. The bill of fare was not very elaborate, but compared favorably with the rations dispensed to other prisoners of war.

He served as Register of Wills, Recorder of Deeds, and Clerk of the Orphans' Court of his native county from 1874 to 1880, and filled other positions of trust and honor since that time.

In 1887 he removed to Lewisburg, Union County, Pa., where he has been a prominent factor in building up a nail mill, steam car axle forge and furniture factory, and other business enterprises. In 1889 he went to West Virginia, where he is engaged in lumbering.

29th, 1806; d. Dec. 10th, 1858, at Wapello, Iowa; m., Oct. 20th, 1831, to Keziah, daughter of John and Elizabeth Fisher Reeder, b. May 19th, 1813, at Alleghany, Pa.

They resided in Limestone Valley, Northumberland County, where he was an active and prominent member of the M. E. Church, being a class leader and a very zealous, active Christian worker, organizing a number of Sunday schools in his neighborhood, and was instrumental in the accomplishment of great good. In 1858, April 12th, he left Milton, Pa., with his family and located in Louise County, Iowa, near Wapello, where, on Dec. 10th, 1858, he passed away to his reward, leaving his wife, Keziah, and their children to battle their way through the world without his assistance. After the death of their father the older sons took care of the family until they married, after which they gradually located in different parts of the west. Keziah resides with her son, Peter O. Shipman, upon his farm near Wapello, Iowa.

In 1886, after twenty-eight years, the surviving members of this family had a reunion at the residence of Peter O. Shipman, near Wapello, Ia. It was the first time the family had all been together since April 12th, 1858, when the family of John B. Shipman left Milton, Pa., and went to Louise County, Iowa, except the oldest son, Jacob, who remained in Pennsylvania.

Peter O. was reared in Northumberland County, Pa. He left Milton, Pa., April 12th, 1858, with his parents, when they removed to Wapello, Iowa, near which place he has since lived. His father died the same winter of their arrival at Wapello, which left to Peter O. and his older brother the care of the family. They rented some land which they cultivated with the aid of two yoke of oxen until they were enabled to procure horses. Upon the breaking out of the Civil war, Peter O. enlisted in the 105th Iowa Volunteers, infantry, but upon examination was rejected on account of a defect in his right eye. He returned home and a year later rented a part of a tract of new land four miles south of Wapello, known as the McKormick farm, which they cultivated six years, after which he and three of his brothers rented the entire tract of six hundred acres west of Wapello, where he is engaged in farming and raising stock. His mother, Keziah, has resided with him for a number of years.

CHAPTER III.

LINE OF HENRY.

3. Henry² Fisher (Joseph¹), son of Joseph and Catharine Mineger Fisher, b. July 23d, 1767, in Sussex County, New Jersey; d. Sept. 9th, 1824, at Bear Gap, Northumberland County, Pa.

He was reared in the vicinity of Harmony township, now Warren County, N. J., where his educational training was obtained. Soon after becoming of age, he married, in the same vicinity, from where, in the spring of 1791, he removed to Northumberland County, Pa., and located in Shamokin township, near where his father's estate was situated, where he purchased two hundred and fifty acres of land, the greater portion of which he cleared of its original forest, upon which he resided until the spring of 1801. Subsequently he purchased the "Red Tavern," a hostelry situated near the present hamlet of Paxinos, on the old Reading turnpike, where he resided until 1804. Later he sold that property to George Startzel. From that place he removed to the vicinity of Numedia, in Columbia County, where he erected a grist mill, on Roaring Creek. He resided there until 1813, when he disposed of that mill to a Mr.

Herpine, and returned to Shamokin township, locating near Bear Gap. There he purchased a saw mill and a tavern. In 1816 he erected a large grist mill on Roaring Creek, and afterward purchased a distillery and several tracts of land in the same neighborhood. In the spring of 1824 he erected a large stone residence at Bear Gap.

The old taxable list of Shamokin township, from which the greater portion of my records of Henry Fisher were obtained, gives the following record pertaining to him in 1823. It was the last assessment prior to his death.

“Henry Fisher, assessed for a saw mill, distillery, grist mill and tavern. Occupation, inn keeper. Tavern “excellent located on Centre turnpike, on Roaring Creek.”

He also owned four tracts of land, containing about thirty-two hundred acres, located in what was then known as Shamokin township. A large portion of it was adapted for cultivation, and is at the present time in the possession of his descendants. The remaining portion was mountainous land, and was considered of so little value that the administrators of his estate allowed it to be sold for taxes. Subsequently coal was discovered upon this land, and there are now two of the largest coal mines in the Shamokin region, in the vicinity of Locust Gap, located upon this land. The title to this property is still claimed by his heirs.

He was a man of good business ability, and displayed excellent judgment in the management of his property. His sons also rendered him great assistance in the different branches of his business. He was a member of Rising Sun Lodge, No. 100, Free and Accepted Masons, of Bloomsburg, Pa. He had the honor of entertaining prominent members of the Grand Lodge of his State at his home on a number of occasions. I was informed that immediately after his return from a visit to Reading Lodge he contracted the illness which caused his death. Being caught in a rain storm he took cold which developed into pneumonia, the effects of which proved fatal on September 9th, 1824, after a few days' illness. He was buried in the Presbyterian burial ground near Elysburg, Pa. In his will, which was dated September 8th, 1824, he appointed his sons, Caleb, John and Clotworthy S. Fisher, as his executors.

Prior to his removal from his native State, he married Magdalene, daughter of Caleb and Catharine Gray Farlee, who was born and reared in New Jersey, where her parents resided. Caleb Farlee, her father, was a great-great-grandson of the George Farley of Warwickshire, England, who arrived at Roxbury, Mass., about the year 1639, and was a Puritan of considerable prominence at Woburn and Billerica, Mass., where he resided. Her father, Caleb Farlee, removed to Shamokin township, Northumberland County, Pa., in 1791, where he died in the year 1802, at the age of ninety-three years. Magdalene died in September, 1823, at Bear Gap, Pa., and was buried in the Blue Hill Presbyterian burial ground, near Elysburg, Pa.

Samuel and Sarah Kerling Holliway, b. in Berks County, Pa., Jan. 1st, 1835.

Judge William K. Holliway was reared upon his father's farm and attended the common schools of his native county. Taking a dislike to the occupation of a farmer, he obtained, in his thirteenth year, a position as clerk in a store in Reading, Pa., where he remained one year, after which he was employed at other work until he located in Danville, Pa., in 1856, where he served as clerk another year and was then promoted to time-keeper and superintendent of accounts for the firm of Waterman & Beaver, iron and steel manufacturers. In the spring of 1860 he removed to Roaring Creek, where they resided six months, after which they returned to Danville, where they have remained until the present time. Upon his return to Danville he resumed his former position with Waterman & Beaver as book-keeper. He was subsequently promoted to the responsible position of cashier, a trust which he held for a number of years. Later on the store changed hands, and, under the firm name of Waterman & Co., he was made manager of their business until the store and iron works again changed owners, under the name of the Montour Iron and Steel Company, of which he was made superintendent. In April, 1887, he, with two other gentlemen, purchased the store and continued the business under the firm name of Wm. K. Holliway &

Co., until April 1st, 1890, when he retired from business. Jan. 21st, 1890, he was appointed Associate Judge of Montour County by Governor James A. Beaver.

58. Jacob Farlee³ Fisher (Henry², Joseph¹), son of Henry and Magdalene Farlee Fisher, born near Bear Gap, Pa., Jan. 20th, 1795; died upon his plantation near Numedia, Pa., Feb. 9th, 1881; married, first, March 3d, 1816, to Elizabeth Parkes, born Feb. 26th, 1793; died Dec. 7th, 1831; married, second, April 3d, 1836, Sarah C. Parkes, sister of first wife, born Oct. 11th, 1817; died July 6th, 1879.

He was reared and educated in the vicinity of Paxinos and Bear Gap, where his father resided. The early years of his life were devoted to hunting and trapping (which seems to have been an inherent quality of his nature) in the forests of his father's estate and those adjoining. At that period the greater portion of Shamokin township was an almost unbroken forest. Indians and wild beasts were to be found in great abundance.

and often disputed the right of way of the early settlers in their wild domain. He frequently related to his children incidents of his early exploits in hunting and thrilling adventures with wolves, bears and panthers in the forests of his father's estate and upon his own plantation. He was unusually well educated for that early period, for in the then sparsely settled localities education was considered of minor importance, and the opportunities for gaining a liberal education were rather limited. He was an ardent politician, and enjoyed a political argument or debate upon the issues of the day; and being a fluent talker, and well informed, usually proved a formidable opponent.

Subsequent to his first marriage his father gave him a large tract of land, located about two miles from Bear Gap. Upon this plantation he resided until the time of his death. His children say that to them, in a great measure, were left the duties of farming and attending to his business affairs, while he would devote the time to his favorite vocation of hunting. He was a man who was highly respected for his honesty and integrity in all his business relations. His home was always a place of refuge for the poor and unfortunate, and to all in time of need was extended a willing and helping hand.

60. John² Fisher (Henry,² Joseph¹), son of Henry and Magdalene Farlee Fisher, born September 20th, 1800, near Paxinos, Northumberland County, Pa.; died September 11th, 1881.

Levin Fisher

His early life was spent in the locality, where he subsequently made his home. His education was obtained in the same vicinity. After becoming of age he aided his father in the management of his different estates; he also, at an early age, learned the occupation of a miller in one of his father's mills. He subsequently operated this mill until the year 1826, when he married and began business for himself. He first rented the Bear Gap mill, situated on Roaring Creek, the dividing line between Columbia and Northumberland Counties, which he operated until the year 1851, when he purchased the Sober mill property and adjoining estate of several hundred acres, located about one mile from the present hamlet of Paxinos. This mill was originally built about the year 1780, by Bernard Eyrgood, and was one of the first of its kind erected in the wilds of Northumberland County. Samuel Sober subsequently purchased it. After his death it was rebuilt by his heirs; after which John Fisher succeeded to the ownership of the property and operated it with the assistance of his eldest son, Clotworthy, until 1855, when this son took charge of and operated it until 1873, when it was sold to John W. Reed. After 1855 he gave his entire attention to farming. About the year 1873 he purchased two large tracts of fine land in the vicinity of Paxinos; his son, Albert, farming one, and his son-in-law, Charles Paul, the other. They subsequently became owners of the same by will. He was a liberal contributor to the Methodist Church, of which he and his wife were members. There is a church in that locality which stands as a monument to his name and generosity to the cause of religion.

August 6th, 1826, he married Hannah, daughter of Nicholas and Sarah Taylor Yocum, born Dec. 12th, 1806, near Paxinos, Pa.; died Aug. 11th, 1889. She was a life-long member of the Methodist Church, and for a number of years was connected with Oak Grove M. E. Church, near Paxinos, where she was a regular attendant.

After the death of her husband she remained upon the homestead until the time of her death.

Bobb received a good education, and at the early age of sixteen began to fight his way through the world, working at various places until the autumn of 1862, when he taught school at Snufftown. In the spring following he clerked for John Nesbit, at Paxinos, where he remained until he answered Governor Curtin's call for troops, June 16th, 1863, when he enlisted at Harrisburg, in Company A, 28th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Militia, and served during the emergency that was caused by Longstreet's threatened invasion of Pennsylvania. He subsequently attended several terms at the High School at Mifflinburg, after which he was connected with several ventures until 1867, when he finally located at Paxinos, which has since been his home. August 27th, 1867, he was appointed postmaster at Paxinos, an office he has since held. In the spring of 1871 he was appointed agent for the Northern Central Railway Company at that place, a position he still retains. In 1876 he erected a brick mansion named "Mapleton," upon some land purchased from Daniel Swank, in which he has since resided.

son of Henry and Magdalene Farlee Fisher, born April 10th, 1802, at the Red Tavern, located near Paxinos, Shamokin township, Northumberland County, Pa., died at Espy, Columbia County, Pa., Oct. 3d, 1866.

He received his education at the schools that were located in the vicinity where he was born and reared, and remained at home with his parents until he became of age. He was twice married: first, Jan. 20th, 1822, to Catharine E., daughter of Lambert and Elida Farlee Pitner, born in Shamokin township, Northumberland County, Pa., Jan. 17th, 1799. By this marriage he had five children, three sons and two daughters. Married, second, Oct. 24th, 1830, to Rebecca, daughter of Jacob and Margaret Kimbpel Fisher, born, Jan. 3d, 1810, near Sharp Ridge, Montour County, Pa.; died April 28th, 1885, at Bloomsburgh, Pa., by whom he had nine sons and three daughters.

Subsequent to his first marriage, his father gave him a farm containing two hundred and three acres, with all the appurtenances necessary for that occupation. This plantation was located near Sharp Ridge, in Mayberry township, Montour County, Pa., and was part of the tract that previously belonged to the Fisher estate, that his grandfather, Joseph Fisher, had purchased when he first located in Northumberland County, in 1788. He resided there about ten years. All the children by his first marriage were born at that place. In July, 1829, his wife, Catharine E., died, after an illness of three days, and, with her infant babe, was interred in the old Blue Hill Presbyterian burial ground, near Elysburg, Pa. Shortly after his second marriage he was obliged to dispose of his property to meet an obligation he had made in aiding a member of the family. From that place he removed to a farm in the same vicinity, where he resided until the spring of 1840, when he removed to the McKelvey farm near Bloomsburg, Pa., where he remained until the spring of 1866. He subsequently purchased the Espy Island, a small plantation, upon which he removed in April, 1866. He died at that place Oct. 3d, 1866.

CHAPTER IV.

LINE OF MARY, AND THE MUTCHELER FAMILY.

4. Mary² Fisher (Joseph¹) daughter of Joseph and Catharine Mineger Fisher, born Dec. 18th, 1769, in Sussex County, N. J.; died, 18 , near Union Corners, Pa.; married, Aug. 10th, 1788, to Samuel Mutcheler, of Harmony township, now Warren County, N. J. He died in October, 1840, upon his plantation.

They lived in Sussex County, N. J., for a short period after their marriage, from which, in the spring of 1791, they removed to Catawissa township, Columbia County, Pa., locating upon a tract of undeveloped land near what is now known as Sharp Ridge, on Little Roaring Creek, where they subsequently resided. The old log house that he erected upon his arrival there is still standing, and in a good state of preservation. The building and adjoining land, which he cleared of its virgin forests, is still owned by their descendents. In the year 1820 the assessment books of Catawissa township, Columbia County, Pa., have him assessed with three hundred and thirty-three acres of land, log house and barn, adjoining Joseph Fisher's estate; occupation given as farmer. In after years he engaged in the business of weaving different grades of flannels and woolen fabrics. They had two large looms, and the weaving was performed by hand. They were both members of the Presbyterian Church located in that vicinity.

CHAPTER V.

LINE OF ELIZABETH, AND THE REEDER FAMILY.

5. Elizabeth² Fisher (Joseph, Sr.¹), daughter of Joseph and Catharine Mineger Fisher, born in Sussex County, N. J., July 21st, 1774; died July, 1840, in Lower Augusta township, Northumberland County, Pa., and buried at the Mountain Presbyterian burial ground at Boyle's Run, Pa. She married John Reeder, who died in May, 1813, at Allegheny, Pa.

John Reeder was one of the pioneers who settled in what is now known as Northumberland County. He came, probably, from New Jersey, prior to the Revolutionary war, locating in Shamokin township, near the present town of Elysburg. He was driven out by the Indians at the time of the general exodus, and remained away about seven years, after which he returned to Lycoming County, and resided for a time on Loyalsock Creek. Subsequently he returned to Shamokin township, where he married Elizabeth, daughter of Joseph and Catharine Mineger Fisher, and resided for a time at Shamokin; and at Bear Gap, where the greater portion of their children were born. In 1799 he is assessed in Shamokin township with fifty acres of land, in the old devolved upon the shoulders of Joseph, when he was himself only fourteen years of age. Soon after his father's death he walked the distance from Allegheny, Pa., to Catawissa to his maternal grandparents, to secure assistance in the removal of his mother and her family back to their old home. On his return he was accompanied by his uncle, Joseph Fisher, Jr., with conveyances in which the family were removed to their grandfather's home, near Sharp Ridge. After his first marriage, he, from time to time, purchased land as his means would permit, until he had an extensive and valuable plantation, located in the vicinity of Elysburg, Pa., where they resided until 1853; after which he was engaged in the mercantile business at Paxinos, Pa., until 1859. Subsequently he returned to his farm near Union Corners, in Northumberland County, where they lived until the spring of 1870, when he retired from active business pursuits, removing to Elysburg, Pa., where he died. He was noted as an expert agriculturist. He made a specialty of the culture of small fruits, and was the first person to introduce the cultivation of peach and pear trees into that vicinity; and in order to better understand their cultivation, he made a trip to New Jersey, where he learned the art of budding and grafting. He, with his wife Catharine, were both members of the Methodist Church, and were buried at the M. E. burial ground at Sharp Ridge.

They had issue :

138. i. Mary³, b. September 23d, 1818; m. Isaac Woodruff.
- ii. John, b. April 4th, 1820; d. Feb. 19th, 1821.

- v. Samuel, b. Jan. 25th, 1878; d. Jan. 26th, 1878.

141. Hiram John³ Reeder, Esq. (Joseph², John¹), son of Joseph and Catharine Mutcheler Reeder, born in Rush township, Northumberland County, Pa., March 5th, 1826; married, January 24th, 1849, to Elizabeth, daughter of Joseph and Sarah Tietsworth Yocum, born Dec. 13th, 1830.

After marriage they moved upon a farm near Catawissa, Pa., where they lived until April 5th, 1870, when they removed to Catawissa, Pa., where they continue to reside. In 1863 he was elected Justice of the Peace of Franklin township, and held that position until the spring of 1870. While he resided in the country he occupied a prominent position in local affairs. He held the office of school director for a number of years, and was chosen to fill other local offices. In the fall of 1870 he was elected to the office of Commissioner of the County of Columbia, which office he held for the term of three years. He was again elected in 1873 to the office of Justice of the Peace at Catawissa for a term of five years. After his removal from the country he paid especial attention to the cultivation of small fruits. He is a believer in progress; and, with his progressive ideas, gave his son, Wilbur F. Reeder, a thorough education, thus fitting him for his life's work. He is a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity, and is constantly holding some office in that order. All his life he has been an active worker in the Methodist Church, of which he and his wife are members.

They had issue:

i. Joseph B.⁴, b. Aug. 22d, 1851; d. March 23d, 1869.

ii. George C., b. March 13th, 1853; d. March 18th, 1863.

144. iii. Wilbur F., b. Jan. 7th, 1855.

144. Wilbur F.¹ Reeder (Hiram J.³, Joseph,² John¹), son of Hiram J. and Elizabeth Reeder, born near Catawissa, Pa., Jan. 7th, 1855; m., Dec. 19th, 1878, to Lillie S., daughter of Rev. Thomas D. and Mary J. Gotwalt, born in 1859, at Curwensville, Clearfield County, Pa.

In the fall of 1872 he entered Williamsport Dickinson Seminary, and graduated in June, 1875, receiving the degree of B. A., and taking the first honors of his class. In the fall of 1875 he went to Bellefonte, Centre County, Pa., his present residence, and commenced reading law with the firm of Bush, Yocum & Hastings, and was admitted to the bar in May, 1877, after passing a rigid examination. Of his admission the Watchman, a newspaper of Bellefonte, made the following comment:

"ADMITTED—Mr. Wilbur F. Reeder, late a law student "with Bush, Yocum & Hastings, was admitted to the bar "a couple of weeks ago after standing one of the best "examinations ever gone through with by any young "lawyer in this county. The examination was an exceedingly strict and thorough one, the committee "putting in some twenty-five hours hard work. But "they found Mr. Reeder booked on all points and in all "phases of the law, showing the most ample preparation and an exhaustive course of reading. The young "gentleman was highly complimented by his examiners

“and by the lawyers generally. He is now a full-fledged attorney. We wish him success, hoping that he may go on up until he reaches the topmost round in the ladder of legal fame and honor.”

He at once commenced the practice of law, and in 1881 formed a partnership with Gen. D. H. Hastings, who is now Adjutant-General of Pennsylvania, which partnership continues to the present time. In January, 1889, he was concerned for the defense in a murder case, the first one since he was admitted to the bar, and succeeded in procuring a verdict of acquittal after a most vigorous and bitter fight. Again, in November, 1889, he was retained for accused in a murder case. The Daily News, of Bellefonte, of Nov. 30th, 1889, says:

“The defense was represented by W. F. Reeder, Esq., singly and alone. Mr. Reeder had already made a reputation for himself as a criminal lawyer, but his effort in behalf of the man charged with the murder of his wife and mother-in-law have added a new lustre of unusual brilliancy to his professional reputation. Under the circumstances connected with the case, which were so clear, it seemed almost an absurdity to set up any defense. And any man who sat in the court house on Wednesday afternoon and heard the case Mr. Reeder presented to establish the plea of emotional insanity, could easily recognize in it the work of a great lawyer. And any one who sat in the court house on Thursday afternoon and listened to his eloquent appeal in behalf of his client will readily coincide with us that the star in the professional firmament of Mr. Reeder now shines with unusual brilliancy, and that he is destined ere long

“to stand in the first ranks of the most noted criminal
“lawyers of the land.”

Outside of his professional life, he has taken an active part in politics. During the year 1887 he was chairman of the Republican County Committee of Centre County. He is also a member of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, in which he holds the commission of first lieutenant of Company B, 5th Regiment, Second Brigade.

They had issue:

i. John Wallace⁵ Reeder, b. Dec. 26th, 1879.

142. Margaret³ Reeder (Joseph²), born in Rush township, Northumberland County, Pa., March 27th, 1828; married, Jan. 20th, 1853, by Rev. I. Elliot, to Hamilton, son of William and Jane Moore Clark, born June 6th, 1828, in Rush township, Northumberland County, Pa.

After their marriage they resided on the Reeder homestead for three years, thence removed to Franklin in Catawissa township, Columbia County, Pa., where they farmed for thirteen years. March 17th, 1870, removed to their present residence at Catawissa, Pa., since which he has been engaged in the agricultural machinery business. They have been nearly life-long members of the Methodist Church, in which they are active workers.

They had issue:

i. Emily F.⁴ Clark, b. Nov. 4th, 1853.

145. ii. William Reeder, b. April 6th, 1856.

CHAPTER VI.

LINE OF JOHN FISHER, SR.

7. John² Fisher (Joseph¹), son of Joseph and Catharine Mineger Fisher, born June 19th, 1776, in Sussex County, N. J.

He removed with his parents in the spring of 1788 to Shamokin township, Northumberland County, Pa., where he was reared and educated. He remained upon his father's plantation until his marriage, after which he resided for a time at Catawissa. He also resided for a time at Mifflinburg, Pa., where he kept a hotel. In the spring of the year 1810 he left his home on a business trip to Albany, N. Y., and was never afterwards heard from. It has always been conjectured that he was killed by the Indians, who at that period were at war with the settlers along the Hudson River.

He married Elizabeth, daughter of Nicholas Mauser, Aug. 13th, 1798; born in 1775, in Bucks County, Pa.; died Oct. 9th, 1844, in Noble township, Branch County, Mich. Her father, Nicholas Mauser, resided for a number of years in Bucks County, Pa., from whence, in 1785, he removed to what is now known as Cooper township, Montour County, Pa., where he purchased a large tract of timber land. The pioneer cabin that he built is still standing, and is in possession of his descendants. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and on Jan. 4th, 1777, he was commissioned First Lieutenant of Captain Christian Binkley's Company of the Third Battalion of Bucks County Militia. The gun he carried is still preserved as a valuable relic by one of his descendants, Aaron C. Mauser, who resides upon the old homestead near Danville, Pa. Elizabeth, in 1836, removed to Michigan with their daughter, Catharine Shane, with whom she resided until her death.

They had issue:

146. i. John,³ b. _____; m. Lydia Lazarus.
147. ii. Catharine, b. June 13th, 1801, m. Thomas Shane.
148. iii. William, b. Oct. 19th, 1806; m. Eleanor Blue.
149. iv. Elizabeth, b. Sept. 19th, 1809; m. John Ritter.

147. Catharine³ Fisher (John, Sr.,² Joseph¹), daughter of John and Elizabeth Mauser Fisher, born June 13th, 1801, in Hemlock township, Columbia County, Pa.; died May 14th, 1884, in Burr Oak, Mich.; married Thomas Shane, son of George and Mary Shane, born Oct. 7th, 1798, in Hemlock township, Columbia County, Pa.; died Dec. 16th, 1866, upon his farm near Burr Oak, Mich. His father, George Shane, died May 19th, 1842, aged eighty-one years and two months; and mother, Mary, wife of George, died Dec. 12th, 1855, aged eighty-five years, and were interred in the burial ground at _____, Pa.

Thomas, after marriage, resided some few years near the parental homestead, after which they moved to the township of Liberty, Tioga County, Pa. Here they lived until 1832: thence they removed to Lockport, N. Y., where they resided until Sept., 1836, when they removed to Michigan, locating upon a farm in Bronson, now Noble township, Branch County, where they resided until his death. Michigan was almost an unbroken wilderness at that time, but her rich soil was a constant challenge to the hardy pioneer to come to her possession. Hardships, trials and privations they had that are incident to pioneer life, of which the compiler has given a full description in a previous part of this book. In about a year after the death of her husband, Catharine moved to the village of Burr Oak, and made it her residence during the remainder of her life.

CHAPTER VII.

LINE OF JACOB, SR.

8. Jacob² Fisher, Sr. (Joseph¹), son of Joseph and Catharine Mineger Fisher, born in Sussex County, New Jersey, Dec. 18th, 1783; died Oct. 29th, 1841, upon his farm near Danville, Pa. Married, first, Margaret, daughter of Albert Kimpbel. She died Nov. 1st, 1831. Married, second, Elizabeth Shreffler, who died June 15th, 1867.

Jacob was but five years of age when his parents removed from New Jersey to Northumberland County, Pa., where he was reared and educated. He remained with his parents until his first marriage, after which he was given charge of a part of his father's plantation, and as his father advanced in years he took charge of the entire farm. His father, within a few years of his death, resided with him. In the year 1820 the old taxable list of Catawissa township, Columbia County, Pa., shows that Jacob Fisher was assessed for one hundred and fifty-three and a half acres of land, log house and barn, two horses and three cows, adjoining lands of William Osmun. Some few years later he located upon a farm situated on the waters of Roaring Creek, near Sharp Ridge, where he resided for a few years; thence removed upon the "Boyd" farm, on the Susquehanna river, three miles east of Danville, Pa., where he died. He had from his youth given his entire attention to farming, and always took great pride in having the best breeds of horses and cattle to stock his farm. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church from his youth. During the early years of this church in that vicinity his residence was used as a place of worship on many occasions by the ministers of that denomination.

CHAPTER VIII.

LINE OF JOSEPH FISHER, JR.

9. Joseph² Fisher, Jr. (Joseph¹), son of Joseph and Catharine Mineger Fisher, born May 20th, 1786, in Sussex County, N. J.; died Sept. 21st, 1833, upon his plantation near Elysburg, Pa., and was buried in the old Presbyterian burial ground; married, Dec. 29th, 1809, to Miss Mary Ann Kimbpel, daughter of Albert Kimbpel; she died in December, 1873.

The record of his life is very similar to that of his brothers. He led an industrious and honorable life, having devoted the greater portion of his years to agricultural pursuits. He was educated in the pioneer schools located near the homestead. He remained at home, assisting his father in the management of his plantation, until the time of his marriage, after which he removed to a farm near the village of Elysburg, where his family were reared and where he lived until the time of his death.

Prior to his removal from Sussex County, N. J., he was baptised, July 2d, 1786, and was early imbued with the doctrine of the Christian religion, taught him by his parents. He was an active and prominent member of

THE FARLEY GENEALOGY.

CHAPTER IX.

The Farley name is one of the oldest in the English family and dates back to the home of William the Conqueror, Castle Falaise in Normandy, A. D. 1000. Duke Robert, before starting on his journey of pilgrimage to the Holy Land, left his castle in the custody of William and Walter as lords of Falaise; and upon his death, Walter, being the eldest, became the lord, and William became the Conqueror, as known in English history. Walter had one son, William, who went with his half-brother to England, as Williamus De Falasie, to whom were given twenty-six lordships in County Devon.

The original spelling of the name is De Falaise. In the year 1200 it becomes Farley. The name is found spelled in eleven different ways—De Falaise, Ffar-lea, Ffarle, Farlo, Farly, Farlee, Farlegh, Farley, Farle, Fairley, Farlea. [ff's in olden time stood for a capital letter.] The name is handed down from Williamus De Falaise through successive generations until we come to Thomas Farley of Bristol, who married Jane Hungerford of Farleigh Castle, Somersetshire, and had two sons, of which we have secured record.

Thomas, the eldest son, born in 1602, went to Virginia with his wife, Jane, and one servant, Nicholas Shotter. They landed at "Archer's Hoop," a projection of land opposite Jamestown, Feb. 4th, 1624, on the ship Anne (the third vessel after the Mayflower). They had one child, born either on the ship or immediately after landing, whom they named Anne, in honor of the vessel that brought them over. This was the first Farley born on American soil. George, the second son, born in

1615, went to Charlestown or Roxbury, Mass., in 1639, and became the head of our Billerica branch, whose record I will give in detail with that of his descendants to the present day. The probable cause of his emigration was the religious persecutions that were being waged between the Protestant dissenters and the Church of England during the early part of the sixteenth century. Being in sympathy with the then King, Charles I., he left his home when the troubles began and emigrated to America, in the year 1639, on the ship Lion. He moved soon after to Woburn, where he lived until the year 1653. He married at Woburn, Mass., April 9th, 1641, Christian Births, a Swede, who came over on the same ship, she being an orphan, her father having died at sea, on the passage over, in 1639.

They lived at Woburn until the year 1653, his name being on the first list of county tax assessed at Woburn, Sept. 8th, 1645, this being the first on record. In 1653, they removed to Shawshin, afterward known as Billerica, Mass., where they were of the original settlers of that ancient village. On the 19th of November, 1656, he disposed of his house and lot of twenty acres at Woburn, to Richard Snow.

Perhaps it will not be out of place to give a short sketch of the origin of this old New England town, with which the Farley, and other families connected therewith, were identified for so many years; and, also, give a few extracts from the records of ye ancient village. The first pulsation of the life of Shawshin, or Billerica, as it was afterwards named for the mother town of Billericay, in England, from whence many of the original settlers came, may be found in a record of the General Court:

“1635-6, 3 March—The Gounr, Deputy Gounr and “John Winthrope, Senr., Esqr., or any two of them, are “entreated to vewe Shawshine and soe to inform the “next Genall Court whether or noe it may not be a fitt
“place for a plantacon.”

There was no action taken upon this until 1637, Nov. 3, when the Court makes a large grant of land, which fell within the bounds and bore important relations to the settlement of Shawshine.

“The Depety Gov., Mr. Dudley, hath a thousand acres “granted him, which was situated about six miles from “Concord, northward; on the northerly side of two great “stones standing near together, close by the river side
“that comes from Concord. (Wch stones were lately “named the Two Brothers.)”

This grant was subsequently known as the Dudley Farm, upon which the Farley, Hill, Jefts, and Chamberlaine families resided. The greater portion of this land is still in possession of their descendants. Grants of land were made from time to time until the whole town included about thirty thousand acres. The Dudley Farm, containing fifteen hundred acres, exerted a vital influence in giving shape to the settlement. It was divided into 12 lots of 125 acres each. Each share was called a “Ten-acre lot,” and consisted of 113 acres of upland and 12 acres of meadow. Only six proprietors held more than a single share. Ralph Hill had a 28-acre lot, George Farley a 20-acre lot. George Farley had also a lot on the township which adjoined the Dudley Farm. The next purchase of land that George Farley made was doubtless in 1661, of Edward Oakes. This consisted of a 300-acre farm, and was purchased jointly by George Farley and the Ralph Hills—father and son. This probably reached the Concord line.

The first record of town officers appointed is made in March, 1659-60. George Farley is chosen to serve on the grand jury and Ralph Hill, Jr., on the jury of trials.

In 1660 "Simon Burd is sworn Clerk of the Trayne "Band," the first record of military life of the Toune; "24: 8: 1661, James Kidder is chosen sargent, Thomas "Foster eldest Corporal, George ffarley Corporal, Samuel "Kemp drummer, and Will Hamlitt clerke to ye "Company."

At a town meeting, "The Toune did agree yt Luftnt "ffrench and George ffarley as a committee in the "Toune's behalf, shall treate with Ralph Hill senr. about "a piece of land, about half an acre for a burial place." The result was: "10: 2: 63, Ralph Hill Snr. gave to the "Toune half an acre of land for a burial place." This was the origin of the Old South burying ground. Mr. Hill died a few days later, and was doubtless the first one to be interred in that sacred spot, where also the older members of the Farley family were afterwards buried. The old burial place is only a short distance from the Farley and Jaquith homesteads. It is kept in good order and is still in use.

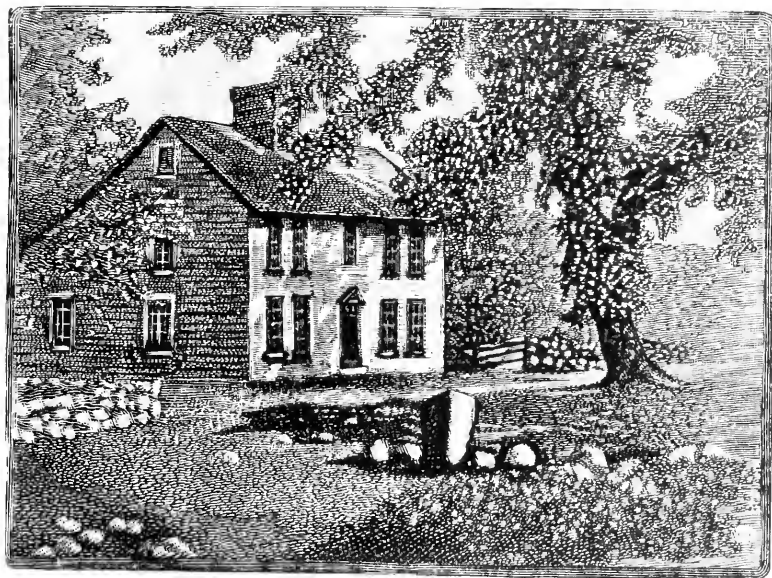

The first record of tithing men appears "8: 8m, 1677, "According to ye order of ye generall Court, The Toune "was divided in several parts and tithing men appointed "according to law. Five were appointed; among them "George ffarley tithing man and vnder his care Job lane,

“Jonathan Hill, Will Chamberline, Nath Hill, Samuel
“ffarley, Serj. Hill, Lt Wm ffrench, and their families.”
They were groups of families by neighborhoods; this group was located southwest of the village.

George Farley, after his arrival in Billerica in 1653, purchased the northwest lot of the Dudley Farm, where he resided near the Jaquith place; his occupation being given as clothier or draper. Upon this place he had erected a commodious and substantial dwelling, which the town records note as being used for a garrison in the year 1676, during King Philip's war.* This house, with adjoining land of twenty acres, has since been in possession of his descendants. The old house, at the present time, is in a good state of preservation. The engraving of this homestead is from a drawing made in 1872. The house has since been remodeled. Mr. Franklin Jaquith, a descendant of Ebenezer Farley, who is in possession of this property, says in a letter under date of Feb. 23d, 1890, in reference to the old Farley homestead:

“There is recorded at Cambridge, Mass., an agreement “whereby Caleb Farley, Jr., received the homestead and “other property in consideration of taking care of his “aged grandfather, George Farley, and grandmother
“during their lifetime. April 6th, 1706, Caleb Farley, “Jr., deeded it to his brother, Joseph Farley. June 9th, “1720, Benjamin Farley deeded the same as sold to him
“by his brother Joseph, to his brother, Ebenezer Farley.

*The compiler had the pleasure of seeing this old homestead in June, 1890.

The Farley Homestead at Billerica, Mass.
A Garrison in 1676.

“The date that Joseph conveyed it to Benjamin, I could not ascertain. May 20th, 1728, Ebenezer Farley, ‘for in consideration of the love and affection which I have and do have unto my daughter, Hannah Farley, wife of Abraham Jaquith, Jr., of Woburn,’ deeded the same to Abraham Jaquith, Jr. After which its owners were: Joseph, Sr., Joseph, Jr., and his widow, Franklin, Sr.; and at present time the old house is owned by myself. The land adjoining is owned by my brother Joseph and myself. On the place is pointed out where once was an Indian burying ground. Tradition has also located a spot where stood a wigwam. Many relics were found here in my father’s early days. Here also was the first birth in Billerica—‘Samuel Farley, born 1654, March ye last week.’

“The autographs of George Farley, Sr., and of Caleb Farley, Sr., of which I have been enabled to send you a photographic copy, were taken from the original documents. George Farley’s signature is taken from the will of Ralph Hill, Sr., dated Nov. 18th, 1662, which he signed as a witness. The signature of Caleb Farley, Sr., is taken from his own will, which he signed Jan. 3d, 1710.”

Up to this time Billerica was without a place of worship, although it is a well known fact that a New England town is still incomplete without this important edifice. Their first pastor was Samuel Whiting, Jr., a graduate of Harvard, who remained with them from 1658 until his death, Feb. 28th, 1713. When the earliest families had been about six years in town, and their numbers had increased to thirty, they were at length prepared to grapple with this problem of a house of worship.

"09, 9, 1659.—It is Agreed by the major prt of the "Towne,—that there shall be a meeting house built this "winter following; thirty foote Longe and twenty and "foure foot wide, and twelve foot high; the studs to be 3 "foot asunder. the Comittee apoynted to agree with "workmen to build and finish the said house, are Ralph "Hill, Sen'r, George Farley, Jonathan Danforth; it is "agreed, also, that the sides and ends shall be covered "with bords and the Roof with thatch."

This primitive meeting-house stood south of the centre of the present common, having its length east and west. It was used as a place of worship by those devout Puritans until about 1694, when the second meeting-house was built. Provision was made soon after the erection of the first edifice for the usual appendage of a New England meeting-house.

"25, 7, 1660.—The towne doe give leave that Ralph "Hill, Sen'r, George Farley, Willm. French, Ralph Hill, "Jun'r, and John Parker, and such other persons as make "use of their horses to Ride to ye meetings, shall have "liberty to make sum housing or housings to sett up for "horses from time to time, without molestatione, and to "sett up ye saide housing below the Hill between the "meeting-house and Golden More's barn, or in sum "other place convenient for them."

During the years 1661, 1662, 1666, 1669 and 1688, George Farley was a selectman of Billerica.

The religious restraints imposed upon them in the years that followed caused the arrest of many of the Puritans for heresy, and they were in turn taken before the courts for censure. On June 18th, 1672, George Farley, Thomas Foster and William Hamlet were before the Middlesex County Court, being presented for breach of the ecclesiastical laws. They all confessed the presentment, were admonished and ordered to pay costs, 4s. 6d., for worshiping the God of their fathers in the way which the judges called heresy.

The trouble with the Indians under King Philip, Sachem of the Wampanoags, soon after this time, caused much uneasiness throughout the colony. In 1675, Billerica, with the advice and direction of the court of the colony, established twelve garrisons for the protection of the inhabitants. No family could be safe without defense. The garrisons were located at twelve different places, and among them one at George Farley's house, "to entertain as it may be capable." These were the first preparations made in the time of King Philip's war, in which George Farley and his son Timothy took an active part. They were both in the famous fight near Wickaboag Pond and the subsequent defense of Brookfield. Timothy was among the first to be killed by the Indians, Aug. 2d, 1675, in the fight near the head of Wickaboag Pond.

Oct. 19th, 1675, George Farley was given credit for military service in Capt. Thomas Wheeler's company, for which he was paid £14. In 1680 he was one of the five "tythingmen" of Billerica. He was one of the early Baptists, and a member the first Baptist Church of Boston. By available records he is shown to have been a man of influence in the early history of colonial affairs at Billerica. His descendants are to be found in all parts of this country, and many of the male members have been men of prominence in both public and private life. He died at Billerica, Dec. 27th, 1693, and Christian, his widow, died March 27th, 1702.

8. Caleb¹ Farlee (George³, Caleb², George¹), son of George and Rebecca Chamberlain Farley, born in the year 1709, near Bound Brook, N. J.; died in Shamokin township, Northumberland County, Pa., in 1802.

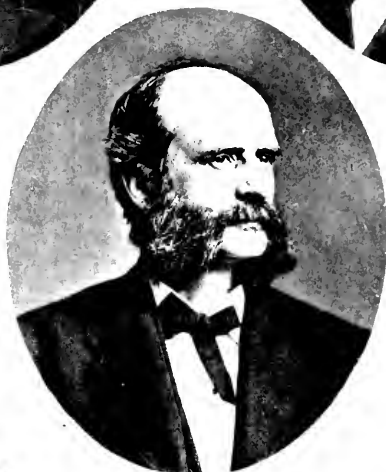

He was reared in the vicinity of Bound Brook, where he married his wife, Catharine Gray. He owned lands in Amwell, Hunterdon County, where I secured record of his disposition of land to Peter Praul, in 1748. His occupation given as a tanner. During the Revolutionary war he resided upon a farm situated on the Delaware River. His sons, George and Caleb, served in the War of Independence. George joined the army on Christmas day, Dec. 25th, 1776, awaiting on the Delaware River bank the crossing of Gen. Washington to the Jersey shore, eight miles above Trenton, N. J., and proceeded with the forces, when the attack was made upon the Hessian troops at that place and the entire command captured. Lambert Pitner was also with Washington in that expedition. Caleb, another of his sons, was a veteran of the Revolutionary war. It is said of him that he made especial mention of his being in the battle of Monimouth, as it was on his birthday anniversary that this battle began, he being then twenty-one years of age, and that he anticipated he would fall that day in battle. However, he came out with honor and unharmed. After the war he married and settled at Head Quarters, N. J., at which place he died in 1808.

Caleb Farlee and part of his family removed, in 1791, to Pennsylvania, locating in Shamokin township, Northumberland County. He was accompanied by his grandson Caleb, son of his first-born son George, with his wife Hannah, daughter of Joseph and Catharine Fisher; his daughter Elida and her husband, Capt. Lambert Pitner; his daughter Magdalene and her husband Henry, son of Joseph Fisher; Susannah and her husband, George Ely, and several other children. Upon his arrival in Northumberland County, he located in the Shamokin valley, where he died in the year 1802. Of his death, Capt. Lambert Pitner, his son-in-law, has the following record in his family register (he omitted the exact date):

“Died on Sunday last between the hours of twelve and “one o’clock, Mr. Caleb Farlee, in Shamokin township, “Northumberland County, Pa., aged 93 years; the father “of eleven children, fifty-nine grandchildren and seventy-
 “three great great grandchildren. His remains on Tues“day following were attended to the Presbyterian bury“ing ground by a large number of his friends and “acquaintances, where his remains were interred. He “always supported the character of an honest, upright
 “man and well respected by all his acquaintances.”

21. Isaac Gray⁶ Farlee (John⁵, Caleb⁴, George³, Caleb², George¹), son of John and Anne Gray Farlee, born May 18th, 1787, at White House, N. J.; died Jan. 12, 1855; married, Oct. 18th, 1821, Theodosia, daughter of John Reed and Mary Ann Kennedy Reading, widow of Nicholas DePuy; she died Feb. 28th, 1858, aged sixty-seven years.

Her father, John Reed Reading, was the son of Daniel Reading and Uphemia Reed, who was the daughter of Col. John Reed, of Monmouth County, N. J. Daniel Reading was the son of Governor John Reading and Mary Ryerson. John Reading, Sr., with his wife and children, John and Elsie, emigrated from England and settled in Gloucester County, N. J., prior to 1685. He was a member of the Society of Friends. He was a man of large property and high standing, and was a useful public citizen. He represented Gloucester County in Council in 1687, and in 1688 was appointed recorder of deeds and surveyor, and is named as clerk and recorder of Gloucester County from 1695 to 1701. His son, John Reading, was a member of the Council of the Colony of New Jersey from 1713 to 1767. He was twice Colonial Governor. His name heads the list of the first board of trustees of Princeton College.

Theodosia Reading Farlee was a woman of unusual force of character. With but meagre educational advantages, her mind showed a natural endowment of no mean order. To a broad understanding and a keen discernment she united a heart of the tenderest and highest susceptibilities. She saw what was good in her neighbors and was blind to their faults, hence she was greatly esteemed in the social circle beyond the narrow limits of family. Her religious nature was most delicate in its organization and her religious experience of the clearest and most satisfactory type. A strict Presbyterian, she was very charitable towards those of other faith. She was a daily reader of the Scriptures, and her son, George W., recalls how, on a Sunday afternoon, with the old family Bible on her lap, she would graphically give the history and points of character of some biblical character with such a keen insight into human nature and rapt enthusiasm that he sat entranced by the spell-binding story. She was a most loyal and affectionate wife and a most devoted mother.

Isaac G. Farlee, whose picture appears on opposite page, taken from an old portrait, passed the whole period of his life in his native county, Hunterdon, New Jersey. With the advantages of a common school education, he developed a breadth of understanding and an acuteness of intellect that gave him a commanding position among his fellow citizens. Trained to a life of commercial pursuits, he acquired habits of business and a knowledge of commercial transactions that, in a wider sphere, would doubtless have secured for him great success as a merchant. Although actively engaged in public affairs, he attended closely to business, and thus achieved more than ordinary success as a country merchant. In early life he was the managing clerk of a large general store at Bull's Ferry, on the Delaware River, which commanded the patronage of a very wide section of country. It was in that position he undoubtedly developed the administrative capacity which subsequently served him so well in both public and private life. Shortly after reaching his majority he manifested an interest in matters of public concern, and was elected to the Legislature, and for a quarter of a century held positions of public trust. Politically, he was, in the best sense of the term, a Democrat who believed in the rights of the people. The conviction in the public mind of his ability, integrity and purity of motives secured him a support from his constituents that few public men of his section of the State could command. The most prominent trait of his character was his sterling and uncompromising integrity. An incident will illustrate this trait as well as the repute in which he was held by his fellow men.

Shortly after his death his widow received a call from the late Samuel D. Stryker, a prominent citizen of Hunterdon County and president of the bank at Lambertville, who narrated this anecdote. He said: "I was a clerk "with Mr. Farlee at Mr. Prall's store at Bull's Ferry; we "were about twenty-five miles from a bank, which was "not visited more than once a month. In the meantime "a good deal of money would accumulate. A neighbor "asked Mr. Prall, 'Who took charge of the money?' He "replied, 'Isaac Farlee,' when the neighbor inquired "whether it was safe, and added, 'You know every man "'has his price.' Mr. Prall quickly responded, 'Isaac "'Farlee has not his price.'" This incident indicates the reputation he bore through life, which is dearer to his children and their descendants than would be the highest political honors that he could have attained. His public reputation was equally pure. There was never the slightest stain on his official record. He was known as a politician beyond reproach.

The following, written by the editor of the paper, and published in the Hunterdon Democrat, a newspaper published at Flemington, N. J., gives a summary of the public offices held by Mr. Farlee in his lifetime, and is a very just tribute to his character:

“The Hon. Isaac G. Farlee, whose death we briefly “announced in our last issue, was a native of this “county. He was born in 1787, thus coming into being “almost contemporaneously with the adoption of the “Federal Constitution. He arrived at manhood at that “period when the doubts and dangers that had environed
“the Constitution were fast passing away—when the “grand idea of the capacity of the people for self-govern“ment was gaining a firm and substantial foothold, and “was gradually ripening into a philosophical truth.
“Instinct with the enthusiasm and spirit of the age, he “connected himself with the Democratic party, to which,
“amidst all the changes of public sentiment, and muta“tions of party, he ever remained a consistent and active “member. With him Democracy was more than a name.
“It was a living principle, moulding his character, and “controlling all his political actions. Shortly after “becoming of age he was elected to the Legislature for “two years, and during this period he was appointed “Brigadier-General. He was again elected in 1827 and “1828. Thus, at this early period of life, his urbanity of “manners, faithfulness in the discharge of his duties,
“and great devotion to the welfare of the masses, had “gained for him a high and enviable position. In 1829 he was appointed Clerk of the County, which office he held for ten years. In 1842 he was elected to Congress on the general ticket. In 1843 the State was divided into Congressional Districts, Hunterdon, Mercer, Somerset and Middlesex comprised the Third District. Mr. Farlee was re-nominated in 1844, but was defeated by a small majority. In 1846 he was elected to the State Senate. His Senatorial career presents a clear record. Every reform that tended to enlarge the area of human happiness found in him a warm and consistent supporter.

“In 1850 he was a prominent candidate for the nomination of Governor, and in 1852 he was appointed Judge of the Common Pleas, which office, with that of President of the Bank, he held at the time of his death. His success in life, and the large share of public honors that fell to his lot, was not owing to adventitious circumstances, neither to those political tricks that demagogues too often employ to gain an ephemeral notoriety, nor again to a venal press, hired to sound his praise, but it was the natural result of his purity of character, joined to the high qualities of a well-balanced mind.

“While the family mourn the loss of an affectionate husband and a kind father, and society the loss of an esteemed and honorable citizen, the Democratic party is deprived of a leading spirit, who followed the path of duty, by the light of principle, and, dying, leaves behind him an example of consistency, and public virtue, that the rising public men would do well to imitate.”

After marriage she removed to Asbury, N. J., where she resided about fifteen years, and where all her children were born, except Lizzie R. For the past thirty years she has resided in Trenton, N. J., where she has lived to rear three of her children, who, with a little cluster of grandchildren, make pleasant the evening of her days and faithfully reward her with their affection for the love of her life's care and devotion. Her husband, Augustus G. Richey, is a prominent lawyer of extensive practice and a gentleman of means. He is largely interested in the public improvements of the county and is esteemed one of the most useful and enterprising citizens of Trenton. For about forty years he has been an elder in the Presbyterian Church, is very active in the work of the church and a very liberal contributor to benevolent enterprises. He served one term as State Senator from Mercer County; but public office he found not especially congenial to his nature, and this position was the limit of his political ambition.

He was educated for a merchant, and was the senior of the firm of Farlee & Jones, who did a large business in Flemington. He took an interest in public affairs, and early in life received the nomination for County Clerk in Hunterdon County, N. J., at the hands of the Democratic party. Theretofore a nomination by that party was equivalent to an election, the Democratic party being so largely in the ascendant in that county. It was the year, however, when the power of the secret organization known as Know-Nothingism culminated, and it secured his defeat. He was subsequently a prominent candidate for State Treasurer, but was defeated by the defection of one or two alleged friends. He was a man of generous impulses, and by his genial manner attached to him hosts of friends.

rural pursuits and taken a great interest in agriculture and the improvement of the dairy breeds of cattle. He has been a voluminous contributor to the agricultural press, and, having devoted much time and attention to the investigation of scientific problems of breeding, he is recognized as quite an authority as to the best methods of breeding Jersey cows to produce the largest yield of butter. He has owned a large herd of Jerseys for twenty-five years, and is vice-president of the American Jersey Cattle Club, a New York chartered institution organized for improving the breeds of Jersey cattle in the United States.

THE PITNER GENEALOGY.

CHAPTER X.

The religious persecutions that were waged against Huguenots along the Rhine, in the latter part of the seventeenth century, which caused many thousands of their best and peace-loving citizens to leave the Fatherland for an asylum of peace and repose on the new continent of America, tradition informs us, were the cause of John Pitner, with his wife and son Henry, a babe four weeks old, forsaking their kindred and country upon the Rhine for America, where refuge was offered to the oppressed and persecuted by the greatest of philanthropists, William Penn.

After their arrival in America, they settled in the vicinity of Bristol, in Bucks County, Pa., upon the Delaware River, a locality that was almost entirely populated by Germans. It was in this locality that Henry, the eldest son of John Pitner, was reared and grew to manhood, and where he subsequently married and reared his family, devoting his time to agricultural pursuits. This occupation I infer he was engaged in, from the fact that in Vol. XIII. of second series of Pennsylvania Archives I find the record of the fact that Henry Pitner was assessed one bushel of wheat for forage for the Continental Army in 1778, and the acknowledgment of the collection of the same. The same record also gives his brother, Michael Pitner, credit for furnishing both wheat and forage for the Continental Army the same year.

There lived a John Pitner in Newtown township, Bucks County, on the road leading from Newtown to Yardleysville, on the Delaware River. He was assessed in the year 1781 as a tenant, and by occupation a wheelwright. In 1788 he purchased the wheelwright shop, with fifteen acres and seventy-one perches, on the same place as described above; and afterwards made additional purchases of adjacent lands, making him a farm of fifty-six acres, where he resided until 1803. I was unable to get his subsequent record.

Henry Pitner, after becoming of age, married Deborah Lambert. They located upon a plantation on the Delaware River, residing in what is known as Falls township, Bucks County, Pa., where they reared their family. After 1783 he disappears from the assessment rolls. The only sons I was enabled to secure record of are Lambert Pitner, born Aug. 2d, 1753, and an Abner Pitner, who, in 1791, as a single man, was assessed in Falls township, Bucks County, occupation given as a miller, and by trade a carpenter. He moved from this township in 1803.

I was unable to secure a detailed record of Henry

Pitner and family, but, as will be noted in the following letter from Dr. F. R. Pitner, a son of Michael Pitner, who, I think, was the youngest brother of Henry, there will be found an account of the removal of the brothers to Rockingham County, Va., after the close of the Colonial war:

CLAY CITY, ILL., March 6th, 1889.

Mr. Clarence W. Fisher:

DEAR SIR:—Yours of March 2d is before me, and I proceed to give you all the information I have of the Pitner family, which is only traditional. My father, Michael Pitner, had but little education, as he lived in an early day, when education was a second consideration, and was raised in Rockingham County, Va., and married Catharine Ruble, in Knox County, East Tennessee, early in the year 1799, just what day or month I know not; but in a short time emigrated to West Tennessee—which is now Middle Tennessee—and settled in Wilson County, twenty miles east of Nashville, where he raised a family of twelve children—seven sons and five daughters.

He had two brothers and one sister—John, the eldest, and Adam, the next, and Elizabeth, the youngest of the family, who married Edward Maxey and settled in Jefferson County, Ill. John Pitner, the eldest brother, settled in Georgia and raised a family, and Adam at the Crab Orchard in Kentucky, and also raised a large family; but I never saw either of my uncles or any of their children.

The father of those three boys was named John. I once saw a letter that he wrote and he spelled his name "Beatner," which, I am told, is the German way to spell Pitner. This John Pitner and two brothers, whose names I do not know, came over to this country before the Revolutionary war during the Huguenot persecution. They came from near the Rhine. They left a bachelor brother there, who was a stocking weaver, and tradition says he was a millionaire, and he died and his vast estate escheated to the government. All three of the brothers entered the service in the Revolutionary war, and none but John was supposed to have survived the war, as he never after heard from his brothers; yet they may be alive, or their posterity, rather.

I saw that Mr. Cleveland vetoed a pension bill for George W. Pitner, of Rockport, Ohio, last fall. I think all the Pitners in this country are from the same old parent stock.

I was born Oct. 9th, 1812, and have been practicing medicine fifty years the first of the present month. I have four sons living and one daughter. My wife died Feb. 8th, 1888. My daughter is keeping house for me. Two sons are Methodist ministers, and one a teacher and one a dentist.

This is about all I know of the Pitner family, all of which is respectfully submitted. Should you get any further information of the three brothers that came before the war, please inform me, as I am very anxious to learn more of my ancestry.

F. R. PITNER, M. D.

3. Lambert^a Pitner, Esq. (Henry^a, John¹), son of Henry and Deborah Lambert Pitner, born in Bucks County, Pa., Aug. 2d, 1753; died near Sunbury, Pa., Aug. 15th, 1823.

After obtaining a good education, he learned the occupation of a cabinet-maker; subsequently that of miller, devoting the greater part of his life to the latter business. Soon after he became of age the obnoxious laws of the mother country bore heavily upon the colonists, and England's attempt to carry the oppressive acts into execution by military force, raised the ire of the colonists and caused the formation of military associations throughout the colonies, and Pennsylvania nobly did her part in that glorious cause of freedom from oppression. I found upon examination of Vol. XIV. of second series of Pennsylvania Archives, that the townships of Bucks County were among the first to form associations for the purpose of learning the military exercise for defense of their property, liberty and lives against all attempts to deprive them of these rights and privileges.

August ye 21st, 1775, the township of Falls, in the County of Bucks, formed its first military association, which was known as the Seventh Associated Company of Bucks County, Thomas Harvey, Captain, and among the first to be enrolled as a member, I find the name of Lamb. Pitner. Within a short period after this time, the Jersey campaign began, in which this company did effective service. Lambert Pitner was with Washington at Trenton, Dec. 26th, 1776, when the memorable expedition was made across the Delaware River and the entire Hessian command stationed at that point captured.

The year following he was honored by the citizens of his township by being elected and commissioned, May 6th, 1777, Captain of the 7th Company of the 5th Battalion of Bucks County Militia, commanded by Col. Joseph McIlvaine, of Bristol, Penn. In the same company a John Pitner was the same day commissioned Ensign. After the expiration of this commission, Lambert Pitner was again, May 10th, 1780, commissioned Captain of the 4th Company of the 3d Battalion of Bucks County Militia, commanded by Lieut.-Col. William Roberts; thus serving as Captain until the close of the War of Independence. By tradition we are informed that he served under Gen. Washington in a number of engagements against the British forces, and also had the honor of a personal acquaintance with Gen. Washington.

There is in possession of one of his grandchildren, Mrs. Phoebe Osmun, of Catawissa, Pa., a small chest that he used during the Colonial war to carry his dispatches and important papers in. The material is some kind of wood resembling black walnut. It is an interesting and valuable relic.

Capt. Lambert Pitner, July 28th, 1779, married Hannah, daughter of John Bates, by whom he had two children:

- i. Henry, b. June 8th, 1780; d. Aug. 1st, 1782.
- ii. Mary, b. Sept. 9th, 1781; d. Aug. 4th, 1782.

His wife, Hannah, died Aug. 24th, 1782. His entire family died from yellow fever, and were interred in what is now known as Washington Square, Philadelphia.

While attending a ball held in the city of Philadelphia, he met and wooed his second wife, Elida, daughter of Caleb and Catharine Farlee, a descendant of that George Farley who arrived in Roxbury, Mass., about 1639, as is described on page 150 of this volume. Elida Farlee was born May 30th, 1761, near Trenton, N. J. Her father, Caleb, was a son of George Farley, of Bound Brook, in what is now known as Mercer County, N. J., where he was trustee of the Presbyterian Church in 1709. Caleb Farlee, the father of Elida, was born there in 1709, and died in Shamokin township, Northumberland County, Pa., in 1802, to which place he had removed in 1791. Lambert Pitner and Elida Farlee were married Sept. 8th, 1783, after which they resided in Bucks County, Pa., for a few years; subsequently removed to Northumberland County, Pa., where they arrived in 1791, locating in Shamokin township on a farm of over one hundred acres, where they continued to reside for a number of years.

The old taxable list of Northumberland County shows that Lambert Pitner kept an inn in 1807, and in 1811 he was engaged in the milling business, located at a small village called Snufftown, on the old Reading turnpike, where he resided until the time of his removal near Sunbury, Pa.

May 15th, 1816, he was appointed a Justice of the Peace by Governor Simon Snyder. The following is a copy of his commission. It is interesting reading.

PENNSYLVANIA—ss.

In the name and by the authority of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Simon Snyder, Governor of said Commonwealth, to Lambert Pitner, of the County of Northumberland, Esq., sends GREETING:

Know you, that reposing trust and confidence in your integrity, judgment and ability, I, the said Simon Snyder, have appointed and by these presents do appoint and commission you, the said Lambert Pitner, to be a Justice of the Peace, in the district number Three, composed of the township of Shamokin, in the County of Northumberland, hereby giving and granting unto you full right and title, to have and to execute all and singular the power, jurisdiction and authority and to receive and enjoy all and singular the lawful emoluments of a Justice of the Peace aforesaid, agreeably to the constitution and laws of the Commonwealth, to have and to hold the commission and the office hereby granted unto you, the said Lambert Pitner, so long as you shall behave yourself well.

Given under my hand and the seal of the State at Harrisburg, the fifteenth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixteen, of the Commonwealth the fourteenth.

BY THE GOVERNOR.

N. B. BORLEAU, Sec'y.

He held the office until the time of his death. Subsequently he took charge of the toll gate on the old Reading turnpike, which was located about one mile east of Sunbury, on Little Shamokin Creek, where he passed the last years of his life. His wife, Elida, died Monday, the 28th

5. John¹ Pitner (Lambert², Henry², John¹), son of Lambert and Elida Farlee Pitner, born Oct. 5th, 1787.

He was reared in Shamokin township, Northumberland County, Pa. He married, Oct. 4th, 1809, Mary, daughter of Isaac and Elenora Tomlinson, who was born Feb. 21st, 1790, in Shamokin township, Northumberland County, Pa. Her father, Isaac Tomlinson, was a blacksmith. His father was a pioneer of Northumberland County, settling there long before the Revolutionary war. About the year 1790 Isaac Tomlinson picked up some pieces of black stone in Quaker Run that he had heard would burn if put in a fire, and took them with him to Maiden Creek, Berks County, for a blacksmith to try. In the year 1810 he erected a blacksmith shop in Shamokin township and used Shamokin coal for fuel. It was not in general use until some years later. Thus, it is seen, to Isaac Tomlinson belongs some credit of introducing and discovering the general usefulness of stone coal, as it was called at that time.

John Pitner was a carpenter by occupation—a business he engaged in for a number of years. About the year 1812 he removed to Elysburg, where he resided until 1823; subsequently removed near Danville, where he resided until 1827, having in the meantime learned the trade of a miller. He then removed to Roaring Creek and purchased the old Boyd mill, located upon this creek, which he operated until 1852, when he disposed of the mill and purchased a farm in that vicinity. This he sold in 1838 to Bird Patterson, and purchased a farm of one hundred and eighty acres of fine river land of W. I. Greenough, of Sunbury, Pa. This farm was located about two miles west of Danville, upon the Susquehanna River, in Rush township, Northumberland County, Pa. He resided upon this farm until the time of his death, April 1st, 1852. His wife, Mary, died June 9th, 1862. They were both buried in the old Mt. Pleasant burial ground, near Riverside, Pa. After his death this farm was divided between their two sons, Abner and Lambert.

11. Phebe⁵ Pitner (John⁴), daughter of John and Mary Tomlinson Pitner, was born in Shamokin township, Northumberland County, Pa., Dec. 26th, 1815; married, Jan. 1838, to Ziba, son of Ziba Osmun, b. Dec. 11th, 1814.

Ziba Osmun subsequent to his marriage located upon a farm in the vicinity of Sharp Ridge, in Columbia, formerly part of Northumberland, County. This was the same farm originally in possession of his father and upon which he was born and reared. They remained here until 1850. Subsequently removed to Shamokin, Pa., where he engaged in the business of teaming iron ore on the railroad between Shamokin and Sunbury. This was prior to the time that locomotives were in general use. They remained here one year, then returned to Roaring Creek, where they remained two years, then removed to Danville, where they resided two years, again returning to Roaring Creek, purchased a farm of one hundred acres from Elizabeth Boone. This they farmed five years, then disposed of it to Jacob Shultz, then purchased a small truck farm near that place, which he farmed until September, 1887. Subsequently he removed to Catawissa, Pa., where he is engaged in the flour and feed business. They are both members of the M. E. Church.

THE FETTERMAN GENEALOGY.

CHAPTER XI.

In this brief genealogical record of the Fetterman and Saul families, I have endeavored to give as complete a record as was obtainable at this late day, sparing no expense or patience in my researches, and only regretting that they are not more clear and complete, especially of the first and second generations. However, I give such facts and records as I have been enabled to obtain, and also a brief history of the cause of the emigration to America, and other facts, that may be of interest. The greater portion of the records of the first and second generations were obtained from the records of Berks County, and many other little facts were gleaned from the same source. To get a more accurate and complete record of the family, the compiler made a trip through the Maxatawney Valley in December, 1888, but was unable to obtain such as I desired. By church records I was enabled to verify those already obtained; and, also, had the good fortune to meet Mr. Daniel Zimmer, an old gentleman who had known the Fetterman and Saul families, while living in Maxatawney township, his father's farm being adjacent. I will speak of him again later on.

That they were of German descent, my researches have proven. That they left Germany on account of persecutions there, is a matter handed down to us by tradition. In the early part of the eighteenth century the whole of Europe was convulsed by religious wars and persecutions, and Germany was the centre and battle-field of the strife. This unceasing warfare caused many an aching heart to yearn after a place of peace and repose, where, in obedience to the dictates of conscience, the Almighty might be worshipped without an interposition by man between man and his Creator. There was also a desire to secure an abiding place where comfortable homes could be obtained, and where persevering toil would gain a moderate competence for old age, and also provide greater advantages for a growing family. Previously to this time the founder of Pennsylvania, on account of his religious opinions, suffered much in this way; and in order to escape persecution and to establish a refuge for the oppressed of all denominations, he turned his eyes towards the Western World, established a colony in Pennsylvania, and invited the oppressed to join him there. This and other causes were the main reasons for the thousands of Germans leaving the Vaterland for the Western World between the years 1702 and 1775, the greater portion of them settling in Pennsylvania.

The Maxatawney Valley, where Balthesar Fetterman and Lenhart Sowl made their homes, was at that time considered the most fertile and productive valley in Eastern Pennsylvania, which was the cause of so many Germans locating there shortly after Penn's new purchase from the Indians in the year 1732. Leonhart Sowl and wife, Margaret, were among the first to locate in this valley. They emigrated from Germany some time prior to 1740, and located in Maxatawney township, then a part of Philadelphia, now Berks County. The tract of land upon which he located was situated upon the main highway or turnpike leading from Fort Augusta, in Northumberland County, to Reading, and thence to Philadelphia, distant two miles from the present hamlet of Grimsville and about twenty-two miles from Reading. Upon this place he erected the Pioneers' Home. Here they resided the remainder of their lives. He, with his family, were attendants of Bethel Zion Evangelical Church at Grimsville.

Indians at that time were more numerous than their civilized invaders, and from time to time caused those early settlers much uneasiness and alarm by their repeated murders and depredations upon their unprotected homes. Between the years 1755 and 1764 these occurrences became quite frequent. One day, about the year 1760, Leonhart Sowl was called away from his home on urgent business, and left his wife, Margaret, and their two sons, John and Leonhart, Jr., at home. While his wife was in the midst of her daily vocation, she heard the dreaded death cry of the Indians. It was enough to make the stoutest heart quail, but she never lost her presence of mind or courage. She hastily grasped her two young sons and fled to the barn, where she secreted herself and children under a structure that had been erected for just such occasions, and which was only known to the family. The children were crying piteously all this while, being terrified by their unceremonious flight and by the hideous cry which was gradually drawing nearer; and in order that their place of refuge might not be discovered through the cries of the children, the mother was obliged to crouch over them to smother their outbursts of terror. The Indians entered the house; but, finding their prey had fled, continued their murderous expedition, hoping to be more successful further on. History records the fact that they were successful, and a large number of homes in that township and those adjacent were made desolate by their merciless cruelty.

Leonhart Sowl died upon his farm at a ripe old age, in June, 1777, and was buried in the burial ground attached to Bethel Zion Church. He was survived by his wife, Margaret, and sons, John and Leonard. He left no will. Letters of administration were granted his widow, Margaret, the 24th day of June, 1777. I have only been able to secure the record of two children of Leonhart Sowl and Margaret, his wife—John and Leonard, Jr., both living in the same township.

The compiler is in possession of a pewter platter that Leonhart Sowl, Sr., brought with him from Germany. It is fourteen inches in diameter and has engraved upon it: "M. I. F. S. R. D. S., 1747."

John Sowl, son of Leonhart and Margaret Sowl, was reared in Maxatawney township, Berks County, Pa. The records show him to have been taxed for the first time in the year 1779. He died in April, 1809. Letters of administration were granted his son, John, and Henry Poh, the 7th day of April, 1809. After this time the records show the family name spelled Saul, instead of Sowl.

Leonard Saul, son of Leonard and Margaret Sowl, was born about 1768, in a Maxatawney township, Berks County, Pa. After the death of his father he succeeded to the ownership of the homestead. He erected for his use a very substantial three-story stone residence upon the same place where the house originally erected by his father had stood. The house is still in a good state of preservation. Upon this place he continued to reside the remaining part of his life. He was taxed for the first time in 1786. His occupation given as a clothier, also as a farmer. He married, first, in 1784, a daughter of

Soon after his arrival with his wife and young son, Cassimer, his wife died. Some years after her death he again married. Afterward located in the Maxatawny Valley, in Berks County, Pa., where he passed the remaining years of his life. It was in Long Swamp township that I first secured record of Balthasar Fetterman after his arrival in Berks County. In this vicinity he married his second wife, Catharine Margreth, daughter of George Heiszt, by whom he had eight children, as follows :

- i. Herman^a.
- ii. Catharine, married to Samuel Bachart.
- iii. Anna Rosine, married to Henrich Gerner.
2. iv. George.
- v. Barbara, married to Frederick Berger.
- vi. Susanna, married to Henrich Marsteller.
- vii. Philip.
- viii. Salome, married to Henrich Martin.

In the forepart of April, 1798, Balthasar Fetterman died at an advanced age. He was survived by his wife, Catharine Margreth. In his will he appointed his wife, and friend, David Strauss, as executors. I append a copy of his will, which was translated from the German, for this history.

WILL OF BALTHASAR FETTERMAN.

TRANSLATED FROM THE GERMAN.

In the name of God. Amen. I, Balthasar Fetterman, of the township Laugenschwan, Berks County, and State of Pensilvanie, am now by age weakly, but of sound understanding, by the blessings of God, to this day, which is the sixth day in the month of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six, make and publish this to be my last will and testament in the following manner:

First, I recommend my soul in the hands of the Almighty God, who has given it to me, and that my body shall be buried in a Christian manner at the direction of my hereafter named executors, and, concerning my worldly estate, with which it has pleased the Lord to bless me in this world, I bequeath it in the following manner, to wit: I bequeath to my beloved wife, Catharine Margrethe, my bed and bedstead, her chest and what is in it, all the clothes, the clock, the stove, one cow and, in general, shall my beloved wife, Catharine Margrethe, take of my movable goods so much as is necessary for her to live by, and it is my will and I do order that my wife, Catharine Margrethe shall keep for herself all the corn, flour, meat and all what is necessary to live by, and, further, I bequeath to my beloved wife, Catharine Margrethe, the sum of eighty pound in gold or silver species, according to a legacy of her father, George Heiszt, which came to my the above-mentioned Balthasar Fetterman's hands by a piece of land from my before-named father-in-law, George Heiszt, and, further, is it my will and do I order that my, in this mentioned, executor shall give to my beloved wife, Catharine Margrethe, besides the above-mentioned eighty pounds, the sum of one hundred and fifty pound in species lawful money of Pensilvanie, and though of the first money which of my estate shall come to the hands of my hereafter-named executors, which money my wife, Catharine Margrethe, shall have to her own use and profit to live by, and, it is further my will, that after my beloved wife, Catharine Margrethe, had taken her part or so much as is necessary to her of my movable goods, my executors shall have a right to sell on public vendue to the highest bidder all my movable and immovable estate in a manner as they think the most profitable, and, after the estate is sold, then my executors shall pay to my beloved wife, Catharine Margrethe, of the first money which comes to their hands, the before-mentioned sums, before any of my children can receive a portion, and, further, is it my will and do I order by this, that after the above-mentioned payments to my wife, Catharine Margrethe, is abated the remainder shall be divided amongst my children in equal shares, to wit: The immovable estate which I now possess and the movable goods after my wife, Catharine Margrethe, has taken her part, and, concerning the two hundred pound which my son, Philip Fetterman, shall pay to me in hand and whereof part is payed for a piece of land from my father-in-law, George Heiszt, thereof shall be paid the above-mentioned eighty pound to my wife, Catharine Margrethe, and the remaining one hundred and twenty pound shall be divided in equal shares amongst the children which I have by my wife, Catharine Margrethe, under this reservation according her age and so as the money comes in and my hereafter-mentioned executors think right.

I have now nine children, to wit: My first born son from my first wife, Casimir Fetterman; son, Herman Fetterman; my daughter, Catharine, who is married to Samuel Bachart; my daughter, Annie Rosinie, who is married to Henrich Gerner; my son, George Fetterman; my daughter Barbara, who is married to Frederick Berger; my daughter, Susanne, who is married to Henrich Marsteller; my son, Philip Fetterman; my daughter, Salome, who is married to Henrich Martine. And finally is it my will and I order that my in this named executors shall give to my above mentioned children or their lawful heirs, according to their age, till to the youngest part of their hereditary portion in hand, and then begin again by the oldest, till every one of my children has his full share; and, further, do I name and establish my beloved wife, Catharine Margrethe, and my beloved friend, David Strauss, executors of this my last will and testament, and I give to them full power, all rights over my moveable estate to give in full force; also to divide the estate which is left by me according to order amongst my heirs, and finally do I declare all before by me maked wills and testaments null and void.

In testimony thereof, have I, the above-named Balthasar Fetterman, set my hand and seal to this, the day and year as mentioned before.

BALTHASAR FETTERMAN.

In good health, sealed and signed, published and declared by the named Balthasar Fetterman, as his last will and testament in the presence of us,

HENRICH FEGLIE,

GEORGE FREIN.

My object being to trace only that branch of each generation from which we are descended, I shall therefore only take up such member of a family from which we are directly descendant, and give such records, biographical sketches of the members of the family, and facts as were obtained. I regret that I was unable to secure the exact dates of births and marriages of some of the original families. I have exhausted all known means to obtain them. The church records being so irregularly kept at that period, I was unable through that source to obtain any information.

2. George^s Fetterman, Sr. (Balthasar'), son of Balthasar and Catharine Margreth (Heiszt) Fetterman, was born in Berks County, Pa., about the year 1758. He assisted his father upon his plantation until he became of age. Shortly after this time he married his wife, Catharine. The first record I obtained of him as a freeholder is in 1787, when I find he was taxed five pence. May 4th, 1791, he purchased from Peter Aston, of the city of Philadelphia, a tract of land containing one hundred acres, situated in Long Swamp township, Berks County, paying two hundred and sixty pounds gold for same. In the year 1796 he removed with his family from Long Swamp township into Maxatawney township, where he resided until the time of his death, in Oct., 1801. He was buried in the Grimsville cemetery. His family continued to reside upon the old homestead until 1807, when the farm was sold and the home broken up. After which his wife, Catharine, went to reside with her son, George Fetterman, at Numedia, Columbia County, with whom she lived until the time of her death, in 1812. She was buried in the Lutheran burial ground at Numedia.

From facts gleaned from near residents, I learned that George Fetterman, Sr., had purchased and used the first English stove in that part of Berks County. It was considered an object of great curiosity at that early time. At the vendue of his estate, which occurred in the year 1807, this stove was purchased by the father of Daniel Zimmer—the latter being the old gentleman whom I had the pleasure of meeting at his home near Kutztown, Pa. He was able to converse only in the German language; Miss Hattie Saul, who accompanied me on my researching expedition, very kindly acting as interpreter. His farm is situated about two miles from the point where the Fetterman homestead was located. He remembered distinctly the family of George Fetterman and his wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Leonard Saul. He remembered when they were married, in 1806, and moved to Northumberland County, now a part of Columbia County, immediately after their marriage. He had also subsequently met them when they visited the home of Leonard Saul. He seemed much gratified at meeting a grandchild of his old friends, and very kindly gave me all the facts he could recall of the Fetterman and Saul families, and he promised to try and think of others and write them himself to me in German. He is the oldest citizen living there, and must be nearly ninety years of age. He still, at this writing, managed his extensive farm, being quite hale and hearty.

George Fetterman was survived by the following children :

- i. Magdalene.
- ii. John.
- iii. Elizabeth.
- iv. Catharine.
3. v. George.
- vi. Jacob.

3. George³ Fetterman, Jr. (George², Balthasar¹), son of George² and Catharine Fetterman, was born in Long Swamp township, Berks County, Pa., Dec. 29th, 1779. He received a good German education, after which he learned the trade of a stone mason, an occupation he followed for a few years. July 29th, 1806, he married Elizabeth, daughter of Leonard Saul, of Maxatawney township. His wife, Elizabeth Saul, was born in Maxatawney township, Berks County, Pa., Jan. 14th, 1785, and her mother, the first wife of Leonard Saul, was daughter of Jacob and Magdalene Kreigh. She died about two years after her daughter, Elizabeth, was born. Elizabeth Saul was a member of Bethel Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, situated at Grimsville, Greenwich township, two miles distant from the home of Leonard Saul. The old church records show her to have been a regular attendant and also as taking her last communion previous to her marriage, Sunday morning, Oct. 12th, 1805.

George Fetterman, soon after his marriage, in 1806, removed to Northumberland County—now Columbia County. Locating near the present village of Numedia, he purchased one hundred and seventy acres of undeveloped land, and on Sept. 5th, 1812, he made the additional purchase of Frederick Whitehead of sixty-eight and one-half acres of land on the waters of Roaring Creek, Catawissa township, known by the name of "Nathan's farm," which the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania granted unto Nathan Lee, by patent dated the 4th day of Feb., 1792. He paid for the same four hundred pounds. Upon this land he constructed the Pioneers' Home—a log cabin—in which he lived a number of years. In the year 1820 he erected for his use a very substantial three-story house, which he occupied until the time of his death, Wednesday, Sept. 5th, 1860. He reared a large family, giving them the advantages of as good an education as was obtainable at that early period. His sons assisted him upon the farm until they were young men and were enabled to take charge of farms of their own.

He was one of the first settlers in that vicinity. That part of the country was very backward in its development, primarily on account of its being out of the way of the regular thoroughfare that was used at that early day. It was also quite a distance from the navigable waters of the Susquehanna, the latter affording to towns situated near it better advantages for rapid progress. The nearest village was Catawissa, then a struggling settlement of not more than two dozen houses. Just prior to his death, Aug. 28th, 1860, he disposed of the homestead and farm to his son, Jonas Fetterman. The autograph that is beneath the portrait of George Fetterman was taken from the deed of this property to his son; it is also one of the last papers he signed prior to his death. It is written in German. He occasionally followed his trade, as it was called into requisition to aid his neighbors in the construction of their early homes.

Thursday, April 4th, 1844, his wife, Elizabeth, died, and was buried in the Numedia burial ground. I append the epitaph on her grave stone:

“ELIZABETH,
Wife of George Fetterman,
Was born Jan. 14th, 1785, in Maxatawney, Berks County, Pa.
She was baptised and confirmed a member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church—
Sponsors, Jacob and Magdalena Kreiger.
She was married July 29th, 1806, and was blessed with twelve children—nine sons and three daughters.
She died April 4th, 1844,
Aged 59 years, 2 months, 21 days.”

Could a biographer more aptly set forth a life's history than is done in these few lines? Between the lines we can read of the struggles, the sorrows and joys that fell to the lot of the devoted wife and mother, whose life was that of the Christian, consecrated to her life-work by her consecration to God. She related many an incident to her children that had been told her by her grandparents of their early struggles and of the oppressions in Germany; of their being taxed until they were able only by hard work and by depriving themselves of the necessities of life to pay these taxes, until at last they became unendurable and obliged them to seek other homes, so that they could educate their children and save a little for sickness and old age. She was, with her husband, a member of the Numedia Evangelical Lutheran Church, and they were both communicants of the faith at the time of their death.

George Fetterman died at his home near Numedia, Columbia County, Pa., Sept. 5th, 1860, aged eighty years, eight months and twenty-four days. He was buried by the side of his wife, Elizabeth, in the Numedia cemetery, where their twin sons, who died in infancy, were interred.

THE MILITARY RECORD.

CHAPTER XII.

This closing chapter has been set apart to more fully chronicle the military records of the different persons who took an active part in the Revolutionary war, and the late war of the Rebellion, than has been given in other parts of this volume. There are doubtless many more, whose records should appear in this chapter, but their omission is briefly explained by the fact that from various causes the compiler has been unable to trace such record.

Captain Lambert Pitner, son of Henry and Deborah Lambert Pitner, born Aug. 2d, 1753; died Aug. 15th, 1823. He took an active part in the war of Independence, having enlisted as a private, Aug. 21st, 1775, in the 7th Associated Company of Falls township, Bucks County, Pa. The Jersey campaign began shortly after his enlistment, and General Washington having called upon the Associated Companies from that part of Bucks County for support, they had the honor of participating with him in the battle of Trenton, Dec. 26th, 1776, and other memorable battles on Jersey soil. After his return from the Jersey campaign he was commissioned,

May 6th, 1777, Captain of the 7th Company of the 5th Battalion of Bucks County Militia, commanded by Col. Joseph McIlvaine, of Bristol, Pa. After the expiration of this commission, he was, May 10th, 1780, again commissioned Captain of the 4th Company of the 3d Battalion of Bucks County Militia, commanded by Lieut. Col. William Roberts. This company did effective service during that trying period. They were at Valley Forge and in other noted battles on Pennsylvania soil with Gen. Washington. The history of Bucks County records the fact that during Gen. Washington's most critical periods he called upon the Associated Companies, under Col. McIlvaine, for support, and the request was responded to with such heartiness as can only be given by those who have devoted their lives to a noble cause. After the close of the war he removed to near Sunbury, Pa., where he resided until the time of his death.

Benjamin Franklin Fisher, son of C. S. Fisher, born Nov. 18th, 1822. He was in the late War of the Rebellion, having enlisted in Company I, 12th Pennsylvania Cavalry, where he served for a time. He enlisted a second time in the 112th Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery, which participated in some of the most noted battles of the Rebellion. He was in the battle of the Wilderness, May 5th, 1863, during which he was wounded, having the first two fingers of his right hand shot off. He resides at Millville, Columbia County, Pa.

Jacob F. Fisher, son of C. S. Fisher, born Sept. 7th, 1831. He enlisted in the Union Army in the city of Aurora, Ill., Aug. 11th, 1862, in Capt. John W. Kendall's company, the 124th Illinois Infantry, 1st Brigade, 3d Division of the 17th Army Corps, commanded by J. H. Legget; Division Commander, Major-General John A. Logan. He participated in fourteen battles, ten skirmishes; and was at the siege of Vicksburg and Mobile. Fort Gibson was the first battle in which he took an active part. After the fall of Vicksburg, he was transferred to the 16th Army Corps, after which they moved against Mobile, where he received a wound in the head. He was in the last battle of the war, April 9th, 1865. From there they went to Montgomery, Ala., where they remained until August, when his company was sent to Chicago and discharged, Aug. 16th, 1865. Since the close of the war he has resided at Bloomsburg, Pa.

William Augustus Fisher, son of William Fisher, born Oct. 21st, 1832. He enlisted in the War of the Rebellion, Aug. 14th, 1862, in Company E, 131st Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He was ordered to Virginia and assigned to the 3d Provisional Brigade in Casey's Division, in defence of Washington. They were afterwards transferred to the Army of the Potomac in the 2d Brigade, 3d Division, 5th Corps. He served in picket duty on Leesburgh road and Little River turnpike. Sept. 18th, 1862, he was in the battle of Antietam, after which he was again assigned to picket duty along the Potomac in the Maryland campaign. He was also in the Rappahanock campaign. Dec. 13th, 1862, he was severely wounded by a shell in the battle of Maryes Hill. From April 28th until May 6th, 1863, he was in Chancellorsville campaign. He was mustered out May 23d, 1863. He resided at Watontown, Pa., for a number of years, where he died Sept. 8th, 1885.

Peter Y. Fisher, son of John Fisher, born Nov. 23d, 1836. He was among the first to respond to President Lincoln's call for troops after the breaking out of the civil war. He enlisted in Company C, 131st Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers. While in line of duty at the battle of Fredericksburgh, Va., he was mortally wounded while participating in a charge Dec. 11th, 1862, the effects of which caused his death Dec. 13th, 1862. He was buried on the battlefield. His remains were afterwards taken up and reinterred in the national cemetery at Gettysburgh, Pa. He was a native of Paxinos, Pa.

Joseph R. Shipman, son of John B. Shipman, born March 7th, 1838. Residence, near Wapello, Iowa. He, with his brother, Peter O., enlisted in the Union Army Aug. 19th, 1862, in Company F, 19th Iowa Volunteer Infantry. Peter O. was rejected on account of defective eyesight, and returned to his home near Wapello, Iowa. Joseph R. was in the battle of Prairie Grove, Ark., and was twice wounded on the 7th of Dec., 1862. He was at the siege of Vicksburg and at the capture of Yazoo City, in 1863. On the 29th of Sept., 1863, he was taken prisoner at Stearling Farm, La., and was confined in the rebel prison at Tyler, Texas, for ten months, being exchanged July 25th, 1864, at New Orleans. Afterwards was at the capture of Spanish Fort, in April, 1865, at Mobile, Ala. He was mustered out at Mobile, August, 1865.

Charles B. Fisher, son of David K. Fisher, born April 13th, 1839. Residence Williamsport, Pa. He resided in the South when the war was brewing, and when secession began to wax warm, he started North, March 6th, 1861. On the 12th of March he was enrolled as a private in the Union Army at Philadelphia. On the 10th of April he left the city for Washington City in company with the 6th Massachusetts Regiment, but they were mobbed, April 19th, in Baltimore and driven back. They returned to Philadelphia and recruited and were armed, and again started, getting through all right. He assisted in the fortification of Washington City the same year. He took an active part in all the battles with the army of the Potomac except the battle of Antietam, when he was suffering from a wound in his right elbow. He was slightly wounded in the battle of Williamsburg, May 5th, 1862. He was also severely wounded in the battle of Malvern Hill. He was in the battle of Gettysburgh.

The regiment of which he was a member was the 26th Pennsylvania Volunteers: Joe Hooker's old brigade of the 3d Corps.

William Fetterman, son of Jonas Fetterman, born Jan. 16th, 1842, at Numedia, Pa., where he lives. He was a private in the Union army in the late War of the Rebellion. He enlisted in August, 1862, in Company H, 132d Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served nine months. He participated in the battles of Antietam, Sept. 17th, 1862; Fredericksburgh, Dec. 13th, 1862, and Chancellorsville, May 2d and 3d, 1863. He was for four hours and forty-eight minutes in active duty in the battle of Antietam, using three guns during the engagement.

Albert Fisher, son of John Fisher, born March 2d, 1843, at Bear Gap, Pa. He resides at Paxinos, Pa. He enlisted in the War of the Rebellion, Sept. 10th, 1861, in Company F, 50th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers.
